Premier Bennett announced today that the new PGE parity bond issue has been oversubscribed, and has been closed.

He said the $35.6 million 5½ per cent issue had been over-subscribed by "millions of dollars," with total sales $50,976,300.

Big Alaska Power Plan Gets Boost

WASHINGTON (CP)—A study prepared for a U.S. Senate committee has heightened speculation that a vast hydro-electric distribution system may eventually stretch from the Yukon River in Alaska down through British Columbia and into the rich power-consuming areas of California.

The study, prepared by Development and Resources Corporation of New York, says building proposed $1,300,000,000 Rampart Dam in Alaska—which would create a lake larger than Erie—is economically feasible and that its potential 3,730,000 kilowatts of generating capacity could be sold as it becomes available.

The report is based on a 27-year forecast for power and is based on full development of the Rampart project by 1990, producing enough low-priced electricity to serve an average-sized city. The proposed Rampart site is about 100 miles northwest of Fairbanks, on the Yukon River which rises out of the Canadian Yukon, crosses Alaska and empties into the Bering Sea. Cost of Rampart power is estimated at between two and four mills a kilowatt hour.

Research on Rampart—a project which required U.S. negotiations with Canada since the river originates in Canada—is being continued through congressional grants. The Senate public works committee is studying the proposal but it still a long way from considering whether construction should be authorized.

SUGGESTS USES

Ordered by the committee, the study suggests one possible use for Rampart power would be to feed it into vast networks serving Canada "which in turn may be interconnected with areas in the states to the south."

It adds that "whether such interconnections will prove feasible in the next 30 years will depend not only on what happens with respect to the authorization and construction of Rampart but also upon the related development in Canada."

This appears to be a reference to the future of the Columbia River project and development of B.C.'s Peace River project.

Interior Secretary Stewart Udall believes it entirely possible to move huge blocks of power long distances.

OUTLINES NEED

The Rampart study says the U.S. probably will need about 1,000,000 kilowatts of new generating capacity by 1990.

It also gives heavy play to

Giant Brush Fires Raging In California; Damage High

1,300 Men Fight Canyon Blazes

LOS ANGELES — Some 1,300 fire fighters, assisted by bulldozers and borate bombers, fought a massive holding action today against two giant brush blazes and prevented them from joining and spreading to more inhabited areas.

The two blazes which started Tuesday afternoon almost simultaneously had charred more than 16,500 acres by noon, destroying a $100,000 clinical building at Olive View Sanatorium, and some 30 ranch buildings including most of cowboy singer Gene Autry's famed Melody Ranch, scene of many movie and television films.

The fires were some 30 miles north of downtown Los Angeles.

A half dozen fire fighters suffered minor injuries such as sprained ankles and slight burns but no serious cases were reported.

FOUR MILES APART

Perimeters of the two fires—one in Newhall-Placerita canyon area and the other in the Castaic-Hasley canyon area—were only four miles apart but there seemed no immediate danger of a junction.

Bulldozers and men using shovels and sacks were concentrated on the southern edge of the Castaic blaze and set up fire breaks which averted a threat to suburban Chatsworth.

Gusty winds, low humidity and temperatures rising above 90 degrees caused fire officials great concern and no one would predict when the blazes would be contained.

PLANES JOIN FIGHT

Six borate bombers joined the battle at dawn and five others were standing by. Fifteen bulldozers and 111 fire trucks were thrown into the battle.

When the Newhall blaze reached the vicinity of Olive View Sanatorium Tuesday night, some 800 patients were safely evacuated. All the patients, including 60 children, were transferred to emergency shelters with the more serious cases going to three hospitals.

Several oil storage tanks at the El Patrero facility went up in flames as the Newhall blaze spread.

Flames advanced on two vital Nike missile sites. A powder works containing an estimated 100 tons of explosives was saved after flames licked to within 10 feet of the plant.

4. Canada will press forcibly to condemn Russia in the United Nations next month for Soviet imperialism.

Canadian representatives abroad have been canvassing other countries for support of a resolution condemning Russia's imperialism, he said. Final decision on the tactics to be employed in the UN has not been made.

Centennial Flashback . . .

THIS DAY IN VICTORIA - 1862

AUGUST 29

John C. Keenan and John T. Howard are attempting to form a cricket club, and have called a meeting to be held in the Fashion Hotel, Sept. 1, at 8 p.m. All persons feeling interest in the manly game are asked to attend.

Bernard Gilpin Lacy, surgeon and accoucheur, arrived from England and established chambers in the Star and Garter Hotel.

The former residence of Mayor Thomas Harris is being converted into a bank building for the Chartered Bank of British Columbia.

A bull broke loose from a herd of cattle as they were being driven up Yates Street, and walked through Keyser's mattress store, fortunately without causing damage, although two ladies on the premises were badly frightened.

HONG KONG (AP)—Communist China closed its border with Hong Kong today minutes after a bomb exploded on the Chinese side of the border station at Shumchun.

The British closed off their side of the border immediately after. A British spokesman said it would remain closed as long as the Communist barricades remained up.

This explosion was the seventh in a series that have rocked border stations facing Hong Kong and the nearby Portuguese colony of Macao in recent weeks.

Observers believe the explosions are the work of an organized anti-Communist terrorism movement taking shape in Red China's coastal province of Kwangtung.

This is the first evidence of such an organized resistance movement since the Communists conquered the China mainland 13 years ago.

Several persons were believed injured in the explosion today.

The previous bombings along the Hong Kong and Macao borders killed two persons and destroyed a Communist pillbox, a blockhouse, a dynamite magazine, a bank and a section of the Shumchun-Canton railway.

Unexploded time bombs also have been found on a Canton-Macao ferry and in the luggage of a Hong Kong resident.

Only one person, identified by the Communist authorities as a Chinese Nationalist agent, has been reported caught and executed.

The Chinese Communists blamed the bombings on special agents of the central committee of Nationalist Chinese President Chiang Kai-shek's Kuomintang party.

The anti-Communist newspaper Ta Chung Pao says the explosions were probably set off by Nationalist agents working with anti-Communist elements on the mainland.

The Hong Kong Tiger Standard says guerrilla forces have raided Communist coastal defence posts in the Swatow area facing Nationalist Formosa in the past few weeks and killed many troops. The newspaper quotes a Swatow resident who arrived here Tuesday as saying "hundreds of villagers in the area" have been rounded up for questioning.

BOY REFUSED TO BUDGE, TRAIN CRASH AVERTED

LONDON (Reuters)—Moscow radio told Tuesday night of a seven-year-old boy who prevented a train derailment by sitting on the tracks in the face of an oncoming train.

It said the incident happened between two towns in the Uzbek Republic in Soviet central Asia.

The train engineer sounded the whistle—but the boy stayed put, stopping the train. The engine's crew and passengers left the train and rushed up to the boy.

He got up without saying a word, Moscow radio said, and pointed to the place where he had been sitting—to reveal a gap in the track.

Lumbermen Will Report To Capitals

OTTAWA (UPI)—United States and Canadian negotiators today ended two days of talks on the U.S. softwood lumber problem and agreed to meet again soon.

A brief, general statement said both sides had discussed the impact of Canadian lumber exports on the U.S. west coast industry and the long-term lumber situation for both countries.

"The delegations will report back to their respective governments and consult with their industries," the statement said.

ASKED BY JFK

The talks, initiated at the suggestion of President Kennedy following pressure by Congressmen from lumber states in the U.S. northwest, were held at the official rather than the political level. Kennedy made the request a month ago, asking for negotiations on possible voluntary quotas by Canada on its lumber exports.

The Canadian group was headed by Norman A. Robertson, Canada's under-secretary of state, and the U.S. group by G. Griffith Johnson, assistant secretary of state for economic affairs.

Canada's share in the U.S. softwood market has risen from 7.4 per cent to 13.1 per cent during the last 10 years and has been damaging for the industry on the U.S. West Coast.

Canada was expected to take a tough line during the talks in which the U.S. was asking for the voluntary quotas.

REVELSTOKE BYELECTION WARMS UP

REVELSTOKE (CP)—The big guns of British Columbia politics were lined up today to let go final electioneering blasts for the provincial by-election in this east-central riding Sept. 4.

CCF-NDP leader Robert Strachan is already here. Premier Bennett is scheduled to speak Thursday and Liberal leader Ray Perrault moves in for a final blast Friday.

The provincial Conservatives are not contesting the byelection. Candidates in the running are J. Wallace Johnston, 52, Liberal; Arvid Lundell, 62, Social Credit; and Mrs. Margaret Hobbs, NDP-CCF.

MOTHER SUPERIOR HAS NOTHING TO SAY Former Nun to Train Lions

Shirley and friends

By EDDY GILMORE

LONDON (AP)—A 22-year-old nun said today she has left her convent in hopes of becoming a lion tamer.

"Mother Superior was very understanding about my wanting to leave," said Shirley Farmer, "but, of course, I didn't tell her what I wanted to do."

Shirley entered the Roman Catholic Convent of the Good Shepherd here five years ago. She said she had completed her novitiate, but had to wait four years to take her final vows.

As Sister Mary Immaculata she was a house mother, looking after and teaching young girls.

"I like life in the convent," she told reporters, "it's wonderful if you have the vocation."

"But I wanted to be out and free. The feeling came over me slowly."

"I've always enjoyed working with animals, and I particularly want to learn how to handle lions."

Before she entered the convent she had been a blind girl in a sideshow. Then she handled snakes and monkeys. Theatrical agent Bernard Woolley said he hopes to have a circus job for her soon.

The Mother Superior of the convent refused to discuss the matter.

ROUND-A-BOUT

By DOUGLAS HILLSIDE

As a man who takes frequent trips over the Malahat to a remote hideaway in mid-Island, I have been impressed with the growth of tourist facilities in the 150 miles north of here.

Time was when the fare offered by Island restaurants was so stylized—and so dull—as to be downright depressing. A game my wife and I used to play was: "Try to get an order without potato chips." No matter what was on the bill, from hamburger to a Denver sandwich, it was invariably accompanied by a greasy nest of potatoes, fries, and usually a side-order of toast.

Specify in your order that you DID NOT WANT potato chips (or toast) and you were licked. Then you got a double ration!

Now all this, happily, is changing. Nanaimo is rightfully proud of a spanking new Tally Ho, larger than Victoria's, which serves excellent food in pleasant surroundings.

Down on the waterfront, not far from the Government ferries, a Japanese place called The Grotto serves fine steaks at $1.95, and will fetch up a tasty dish of sūdōyaki right at your table. There is also a Japanese shrimp starter, and salad, which add to the pleasure of your dock-side meal.

In the picturesque main street which winds through Nanaimo, we discovered a little bakery shop which serves tasty luncheons and dinners at modest prices. It's called the Scotch Bakery, and if you can get by the confections at the front of the store without buying, you're a strong-willed person, indeed.

For years we had been driving by a place on the hill, near Mill Bay, called the Deer Lodge without ever driving in. On Sunday we decided to stop by and take a look.

For 80 cents we had an elegant tea of mixed sandwiches, cookies and cakes. You lounge in a very pleasant living room, with old copies of the London Illustrated News to divert you while you're waiting for your order.

The view is spectacular. You look across a pleasant bay towards Whiskey Point, with Salt Spring Island looming beyond. Fishing boats and yachts skim by and altogether it's a relaxing and congenial place in which to break your trip north over the Malahat.

When Deputy Chief Harry Mercer of city police called in at an auction at Qualicum Beach during his holidays last week, he hardly knew what to expect.

It was the sale of the estate of hermit Giuseppe Roat—an amazing assortment of relics and artifacts from the bearded man's museum.

Items ranged from an Indian war canoe to a 10-foot snake skin, but the deputy ended up buying a pig in a poke.

He admits he didn't know what it looked like when the auctioneer called for bids on a framed painting.

But the man's suggested bid of $200 fell on unsympathetic ears.

His hopeful prices fell lower and lower—still no bids—until Harry started things going with a tentative $5.

Suddenly the item was in demand and bids reached $15 (Harry's price) before the painting was knocked down.

Then he saw what he had bought—a great waterfall scene mounted in a massive, leaden frame that almost ruled it out of the portable category. He needed a truck to get it to where he was staying.

However, there was such interest in the waterfall that Harry had two offers to purchase; rejected one, took up the other, solved his transportation problem and made $5 on the deal.

Favorite Labor Day outings are picnics, fishing trips, boating and swimming, but alas these activities have fatal consequences every year, with drownings heading the list.

About two-thirds of these are persons who fall into the water from boats, piers and bridges fully clothed.

The National Safety League of Canada gives these tips on water safety:

Supervise children playing in or near water.
Swim and boat only with companions, never alone.
Provide each person in the boat with an approved life preserver.

Should the boat swamp or overturn, stay with it. Wait for help or push and paddle it towards shore.

... POWER

the possibilities of attracting vast new aluminum production to Alaska or strengthening of trade ties with Japan by making Alaska a site for producing industrial materials for Japanese factories.

In Canada, only Quebec, Labrador and British Columbia possess large remaining potential hydro reserves, the study says. Ontario might soon have to make a deal with Quebec to get more Quebec power, a deal that would not be entirely "assured," it adds.

As for British Columbia, that province was richly endowed with large river systems but "appears that the costs of harnessing these major potentials would result in power costs in the range of three to five mills under the best of circumstances."

SEES PROBLEMS

"Very large transmission systems would be required to tide-water areas where electro-process industrial plants would undoubtedly prefer to locate. And B.C.'s physiography at tide-water presents some real problems of access, the study notes. The research study places undeveloped B.C. power resources at 37,000,000 kilowatts which "would offer the possibility of a substantial power supply either for export to the (U.S.) northwest or for production of aluminum in Canada to serve the western states markets."

It concludes that Rampart would be more advantageous for this purpose. The B.C. Peace River project would price its power above four mills delivered to load centres. This would not be sufficiently attractive to aluminum companies "under other conditions affecting British Columbia."

Victoria Paintings Given Officer as Part of Deal

VANCOUVER (CP)—An RCMP officer testified Tuesday that three paintings he said were stolen were given him as part of deal to provide protection for a gambling casino at romantic Wigwam Inn.

Cpl. Jack Macdonald said the three paintings, originally in the Victoria Art Gallery, were given to him July 22 by William Foulter Robertson.

Robertson is charged with bribery and conspiracy to bribe, along with lawyer Rockmill (Rocky) Myers, 30, and John Clinton Magrath, 45.

Macdonald testified on the second day of the trio's preliminary hearing in North Vancouver that the paintings were meant to be used as a "hammer" in his role as tipoff man for the casino in the inn at the head of Indian Arm, the east extreme of Vancouver's harbor.

He said the meaning of "hammer" was that he would gain stature in the eyes of his superiors by his supposed recovery of the valuable paintings. One of them was said to be worth $4,000.

Robertson testified earlier that $1,000 in $20 bills was mysteriously planted in his car after conversations with Myers about the Wigwam setup.

Macdonald completed his two days of testimony late Tuesday by telling how the inn was raided by 30 officers at the end of July.

He said Robertson, who was arrested at the inn, was having the warrant read to him by another officer when he spotted Macdonald and said: "That's the way to go, old buddy."

Earlier Tuesday Cpl. Macdonald testified that Myers told him his associates would kill a man suspected of making off with stolen articles needed for payoff purposes in the Wigwam gambling scheme.

Fallout Fears Hit U.S.

By HAROLD MORRISON
WASHINGTON (CP)—Fear of milk contamination from radioactive iodine 131 has forced dairy farmers in two states to shift their cattle from fresh pastures to dried fodder in barns. Three other states also are considering the move.

With the United States and Russia having bombarded the skies with nuclear tests this year, more and more Americans are reported becoming concerned about the risk of drinking fresh milk from cows which have grazed in areas where nuclear fallout has been heavy.

Senator Hubert H. Humphrey, Senate Democratic whip, said the forced shifting of cattle to more expensive stored feed is threatening the mid-west with economic disaster.

"This is what happens when the world goes crazy and when mankind engages in the sort of suicidal madness of an uncontrolled arms race," said the Minnesota senator. "The constant contamination of the atmosphere by radioactive fallout is a threat to the living—not only a threat to peace but also a threat to health. . . . It is death and sickness on the installment plan."

Minnesota and Utah have shifted dairy cattle from fresh pasture. Iowa, Kansas and Missouri are studying similar plans but so far have made no decision.

HAS SHORT LIFE
A by-product of nuclear tests, iodine 131 is a short-lived radioactive substance which loses one-half its strength in eight days. Stored feed would therefore be relatively free of contamination. So is canned or powdered milk because of the length of time required to produce and distribute it to consumers.

Humphrey says the cumulative effect of iodine 131, if taken in sufficient quantities, could cause cancer of the thyroid "and is particularly dangerous to children."

A spokesman for the public health service suggests Humphrey has over-dramatized the situation; that although the nuclear fallout in some parts of the U.S. have been relatively high, nowhere has the established health safety ceiling been exceeded.

This spokesman emphasizes also that the dairy farmers in the two states took voluntary action to shift cattle to stored feed; that this action was not demanded by the U.S. government. However, in Minnesota it was reported the move was taken on the strong advice of a state advisory body.

The irony of the U.S. problem is that iodine 131 fallout came mainly from U.S. tests at Nevada and in the mid-Pacific.

A federal spokesman said that so far there has been no report of contamination in the U.S. from the 1962 series of Soviet atmospheric tests. Part of the reason is that winds may have pushed Russian fallout into a pattern that by-passed North America. Another possibility is that Soviet bombs are "cleaner"—containing smaller amounts of fissionable material than in previous tests.

Girls Lured By 'Doctor'

TORONTO (CP)—A Polish-speaking girl who identified photographs of a man she said tried to rape her provided police Tuesday night with what they believe is a lead in the slaying of 16-year-old Julian Wolanski. The girl was taken to police headquarters, where she identified a man from police files. She said the man posed as a doctor, came to her home and attacked her.

The Polish girl said she fought him off and he ran away. Police said the man whose photograph was singled out has a record of indecent assault.

The Wolanski girl was beaten, raped and shot through the heart more than two weeks ago. Her almost nude body was found in a suburban ditch.

Twenty-eight detectives were assigned to search today for the man identified by the Polish girl.

The Wolanski girl was lured from her home by a telephone call advising her that she had to take a special examination. Police said at first that the man was posing as a teacher from the Wolanski girl's school. But, after receiving calls from more than 100 women and girls who said they got similar calls, police now believe the man posed as a doctor and meant a medical examination.

Suspect Kills Young Officer

HAMILTON (CP)—Police said today the physical characteristics of the man who shot and killed a constable then committed suicide in downtown Hamilton Tuesday night are similar to those of Bruce Griffith, 38, being sought in connection with the death of his mother and another person.

Griffith spent a year with the RCAF and "tentative identification must await confirmation from military records in Ottawa," Assistant Police Chief Howard Moreau said.

Autopsies showed that Mrs. Martha Griffith, 55, and Milton Nelson, 58, a neighbor, whose bodies were found in her burning house Tuesday, both suffered extensive head injuries.

Police said the injuries could have been caused by a hammer found near the charred bodies. The man who committed suicide after firing a blast of his shotgun at the policeman, Const. David Gregory, 23, had only small change and a box of shells in his pockets.

Const. Gregory was known in Hamilton as the police force's "young philosopher." Senior officers said he always took the view that all criminals are basically good.

He is survived by his wife, a stepdaughter and a stepson who has been in a coma since a 1955 accident.

Const. Gregory was shot from a range of 50 feet. Police said George Brewster, a former policeman, saw a man walking along a street carrying what appeared to be a rifle or shotgun wrapped in newspaper.

Brewster drove to get Gregory and the two returned to where the man was walking. Gregory walked up to the man, who turned and hit the constable with a blast from the shotgun.

Police said the killer casually walked down the street. Brewster ran from his car, picked up Gregory's revolver and fired a shot at the man, hitting him in the hip. The killer fell; then shot himself with the shotgun.

A woman said she heard two shots and went out into the street. Gregory told her to "call the police, for God's sake, call the police."

He died shortly after being admitted to hospital.

SPACEMEN WILL MEET

BELGRADE (Reuters)—United States astronauts John Glenn and Alan Shepard are to join their Soviet counterparts in an international astronautics congress at a Bulgarian Black Sea resort next month.

The official Yugoslav news agency Tanjug said the Americans will meet Russian cosmonauts Yuri Gagarin, Gherman Titov, Andrian Nikolayev and Pavel Popovich at the conference.

Mass Arrest of Clergymen

ALBANY, Ga. (AP)—Seventy-five clergymen and church members from 10 states occupy segregated jail cells in three southern Georgia cities. They were arrested Tuesday after trying to hold a prayer vigil protesting racial barriers in Albany.

Jews, Catholics and Protestants, men and women, Negro and white persons, young and old, went to jail after refusing to move from the sidewalk in front of city hall.

"We have come to offer prayers to God," said a clergyman. "Go back and preach to your own congregations and convert your own cities," said Police Chief Laurie Pritchett who ordered the arrests after three times warning the group to disperse.

Separated according to race and sex, groups were sent to jails in nearby Leesburg and Newton and others were lodged at the county and city jails in Albany. Bail was set at $200 each on charges of disorderly conduct, creating a disturbance, congregating on the sidewalk and refusing to obey an officer.

Point of No Return

ACCORDING TO THE FINANCIAL Post, Mr. Bennett has been trying to sell his Columbia River policy to Mr. Pearson. We cannot imagine that a sale will be made.

Mr. Bennett demands the immediate ratification of the Columbia treaty and the alienation of all the downstream power. Mr. Pearson is pledged to re-negotiate the treaty if he forms a national government. Whether the Diefenbaker government has reversed itself in this issue as in so many others and is now willing to sell the downstream power to the United States the public has no means of knowing yet.

But in this, the most chaotic of all issues before a chaotic Parliament, one point is beyond dispute: The Columbia treaty should not be ratified without fullest study by the external affairs committee of the Commons where witnesses like General McNaughton can be called and cross-examined.

Actually the Diefenbaker government has promised to turn the treaty over to the committee but this may not suit Mr. Bennett. He wants the treaty as it stands, without amendment, and he wants it now. Since the support of his partner, Mr. Caouette, may be required for the Diefenbaker government's survival, Mr. Bennett has a strong lever. No doubt he will use it, if he can, to pry the treaty through Parliament without delay.

The Conservatives and Social Crediters could force ratification over the opposition of the Liberal and New Democratic Parties but this would be a very dangerous game to play. Besides repudiating its long-standing policy against downstream alienation, the Diefenbaker government would have to admit subservience to Mr. Bennett and Mr. Caouette and that would be a dismal overture to a national election.

In any case Parliament is bound to get all the facts and cannot get them in the debates of the House of Commons. Only in a committee can it hear the experts for and against the treaty which Mr. Pearson already has condemned, which General McNaughton calls a sell-out of Canada's interests.

Meanwhile Mr. Bennett seems to be going ahead, beyond the point of no return, in the Peace scheme. At a ritualistic gathering beside the northern river a few days ago Mr. Bennett's faithful servant, Dr. Shrum, announced that work on the huge dam and tunnels would proceed in the near future. He scoffed at anyone, and especially this newspaper, who asks where the huge power output of the Peace is to be sold. But at no point did he answer this question.

When the Peace scheme was first mooted, Dr. Shrum and Mr. Bennett sought markets for its power in California. Apparently they found none. Anyway, Dr. Shrum is now saying that such markets are not required since all the power can be sold in Canada. Just where in Canada? And at what price? Dr. Shrum does not say.

Nor does he have anything to say, up to this writing, about the statement of John Davis, MP, that the Hat Creek coal fields offer the cheapest fuel available in British Columbia.

Mr. Davis knows much more than Dr. Shrum about power, having been the B.C. Electric's director of research. The B.C. Electric bought the Hat Creek coal for a song with its own money because it saw a chance to make cheap power but now, of course, the provincial government owns this coal and can prevent its use.

All cheaper alternatives to Peace Power, in fact, are being rejected—the Columbia downstream power as well as Hat Creek coal. At any cost the Peace must be harnessed because Mr. Bennett's reputation is staked on it. This is outside the control of Parliament, but Parliament at least must get to the bottom of the Columbia scheme.

On the Playing Fields, Etc.

THE CLASSIC ATTITUDE OF the Labor Party's left wing toward the British public (re-charging and predominantly residential) school has been antagonistic. The leftists consider the institution one means of perpetuating the class system.

Presumably the Trades Union Council, major factor in the Labor Party, thinks otherwise. The TUC has urged that "opportunities be made generally available for young people to have some experience of such residential education within the period of their full-time schooling."

The TUC suggests that a strong possibility of conflict may arise between the social influence in many children's daily lives and educational influences deriving from the idea of secondary (day school) education "shaped by very different social origins." These differences, the council argues, should be reconciled.

It is difficult, in the absence of details of the Trades Union Council case, to guess what philosophy has moved the TUC to its current stand on public schools. Are the policy makers influenced by the old English saying about the "playing fields of Eton and Harrow"? Or are they responding to the practical American axiom, "If you can't lick 'em, join 'em" in view of the political climate of Britain?

Submerging an Old Prejudice

IT WILL BE SURPRISING IF the start of a new term in the southern states is not marked by some unhappy incidents as Negro children enter schools that were previously reserved for white students only.

Segregation dies hard. But desegregation, in conformity with the ruling of the United States Supreme Court, is proceeding quietly in many areas where the very idea of joint schooling for white and colored pupils was anathema a few years ago.

The Southern School News reports the increasing number of regions that accept Negro children. It is growing steadily. There are still districts in which segregationists are holding out—and are often seriously injuring the educational facilities for their own white children in the process. But the case of racial division in classes is a losing one in the United States.

The tide is running steadily against this division and is gradually submerging the prejudices which spring from cultural opinions dating back to the days of slavery.

Prime Ministerial Mind-Reading Proves Unrewarding

By Maurice Western, From Ottawa

THE announcement last Wednesday that Mr. Marcel Lambert of Edmonton West is the prime minister's choice for the Speakership has strengthened the general impression that Mr. Diefenbaker is preparing in a business-as-usual spirit for the fall session of Parliament. The government, that is to say, assumes that it will be sustained on early tests of strength and hopes to hang on indefinitely or until events take some turn that appears favorable to the Conservatives. While this is the common view, and was implicit in the recent statements of Mr. Thompson and Mr. Douglas, dissenting opinions may still be heard.

At least one prominent Liberal, rich in parliamentary experience, suspects that the prime minister's strategy will be such as to spare Mr. Lambert a protracted ordeal in the chair. The argument necessarily involves some prime ministerial mind-reading, which in the past has proved singularly unrewarding. It is one more measure of the prevailing uncertainty in Ottawa.

Mr. Diefenbaker, on the usual assumptions, will meet Parliament as the leader of a government which will probably appear to the country at large as little more than a caretaker ministry. His position is not comparable to that which he enjoyed in 1957-58 because it was then apparent (and Liberal tactics made it glaringly obvious) that all three opposition groups had reason to dread a run-off election.

If caretaker governments are generally unpopular, captive governments have even less appeal. Mr. Diefenbaker, who once commanded the largest majority that Parliament has ever known, will be captive next September to one or both of the splinter groups which he virtually destroyed (and was acclaimed by many exponents of the two-party system for destroying) in 1958.

Moreover, those sections of the community which have least reason to relish such a government-in-captivity are the very sections to which the government is now trying to appeal by a posture of greater financial responsibility. The longer Mr. Diefenbaker is compelled to endure the embrace of Mr. Thompson or of Mr. Douglas, the less convincing will this posture appear and the bleaker on this reasoning will be Conservative prospects.

To make matters worse, the prime minister cannot be unaware of his new dependence on a party he once dominated. The leader of a minority government is in a weak position to withstand pressure from any faction within the party or from those commonly described as the party managers.

While such a situation may be welcome enough to those who feel that they have suffered from past neglect, it cannot have much appeal for a prime minister whose political instincts, at least until last June, were considered to be a good deal shrewder than those of his more orthodox colleagues.

Mr. Diefenbaker first entered Parliament in 1940. This was the election brought in by Mr. King (for reasons which failed to impress the Conservatives) after a session of one day. Parliament met, in fact, only to hear the speech from the throne. In the view of the present opposition parties, most recently placed on record by Mr. Thompson and Mr. Douglas, an early election would be irresponsible.

The prime minister might, however, seek to convince the country that the economic crisis can only be aggravated by prolongation of the political uncertainty. If Parliament is to meet on the announced date, the quickest way of obtaining a new verdict from the country is undoubtedly that chosen (in radically different circumstances) by Mr. King.

If the prime minister is tempted by such a course, he is not likely to be dissuaded by the current behavior of the two small parties. Mr. Caouette may wave his snowshoes but Mr. Thompson probably speaks the mind of most Social Crediters in deploring thoughts of a winter campaign. This is not simply a matter of depleted war chests. The present spectacle of weak government combined with economic crisis may well be sufficiently alarming to produce a polarization of the vote and another eclipse of the splinter groups.

It must be emphasized that the argument outlined above is very much a minority view. Most politicians of all parties are apparently persuaded that the prime minister has set his course and that Mr. Lambert, if he is chosen Speaker, will have some chance at least to demonstrate his merits as presiding officer.

One may doubt that Mr. Diefenbaker would voluntarily, as an austerly prime minister, lead his party into a new campaign. The fact is, however, that the range of choices open to him in his present situation is wider than is now generally assumed in political discussion.

Even a Free Choice May Have a Price

THE old principle of the "druthers" seems to be still in use. I forget whether it was Fenno or Tom Sawyer or some other character of their era who made the druthers a common term. "Which would you druther... be frozen to death or boiled in oil?"—that was the common form. And the questioner would be left trying to decide between the two unattractive extremes. He might choose one or the other, or break down and refuse to choose, but in any case he probably would forget to demand that the conditions be eased—that recognition be given to the fact that for most problems in life the extremes are accompanied by one or more less violent intermediate choices.

A recent magazine advertisement uses the old principle. "Wouldn't you rather do this than iron?" it asks, depicting a girl having fun with a dance recording and, of course, a date. But there must be very few girls who miss out on a boy friend and a dance date only because they have to stay home and iron blouses. There can be other reasons. And many a Miss might write to the advertiser and complain: "I switched to your wrinkle-proof blouses and gave up ironing. Now I have nothing to do of an evening—not even ironing!"

The ice-and-iron alternatives have long been used in international affairs. Submit by midnight or we march! Abandon the position or we will wipe it out! Sell us your petroleum or ...

But there's usually a middle way somewhere which avoids the extremes—at least in cases where humans lay down the terms. With nature it may be otherwise. The implacable movement of natural law rarely leaves room for negotiation and bargaining. The trouble is, no natural power actually words the alternatives. You more or less have to formulate them yourself, after a close study of nature's basic facts. That may make them harder to believe, but no less implacable.

Don't pollute your global atmosphere with nuclear radiation or you'll wipe out the race. No great voice announces that from a mountain top. You're left to put the idea together yourself, based on what you know of nature's ways.

And with such a one-way druther, it's best not to spend time looking for alternatives—the very act of searching implies that you've already chosen the hard way, that you're going to go on polluting the air, for instance, just to see what happens.

And even so apparently black-and-white a choice may not be simple. For the statesman or scientist may word it: "Abandon the atom and risk extermination by your enemies, or keep on developing it and risk extermination from its results."

Which would you druther?

Standards for Hotels

Years ago I was told Victoria was a dead city, a backwater, an old people's home, but I decided to see for myself and for the past seven years my wife and I have visited your charming city during annual vacation time, even if only for a few days.

We have been singularly fortunate in having had sunny weather during our stay and we have gone about at a leisurely pace in the bracing air. Your streets are very much alive, your stores attractive and inviting, your people friendly and helpful.

On arrival from Vancouver prior to checking into a comfortable hotel room, we looked at several other inns in your downtown area. Their rates were similar to those of our present abode, but their entire presentation seemed to reflect a slum. Dirty walls, untidy appointments, shabby facilities, a regular dump. Why don't you establish a standard for all your hostels? Lodging is an important consideration to your visitor. If he finds it satisfactory he is induced to come again and tell his friends to come, too.

Realistic

The current issue of Life magazine has an article "A Brand-New Wheeze: Pipe Organ Addicts." The author, Victorians will be pleased to know we are right in step, or in tune, with the times. Our own Victoria musician, Reg. Stone, has one of these old theatre organs. For the last five Monday evenings I've sat in the theatre positively entranced with his wondrous white and gold miracle. His years of theatre organ playing in England make him a master of the art.

One evening we were watching a travelogue of Wales. The cameraman was on a train travelling high along the Welsh mountain tops. Mr. Stone, playing the organ in accompaniment to the film, was producing such realistic train sounds that I almost expected a conductor to come down the aisle.

Victoria's musically appreciative populace are certainly fortunate in having an artist like Reg. Stone in their midst.

"The Common Sense of Most"

The following quotation from Alfred Lord Tennyson's poem, Locksley Hall, published in 1842, predicts the international law enforcement agency which Mr. J. R. Elgodd called for in his recent letter:

"For I dipt into the future, far as human eye could see,
Saw a vision of the world, and all the wonder that would be;
Saw the heavens fill with commerce, argosies of magic sails,
Pilots of the purple twilight, dropping down with costly bales;
Heard the heavens filled with shouting, and there rained a ghastly dew
From the nations' airy navies grappling in the central blue;
Till the war-drum throbbed no longer, and the battle flags were furled
In the Parliament of man, the Federation of the world.
There the common sense of most shall hold a fretful realm in awe,
And the kindly earth shall slumber, lapt in universal law."

It is amazing that Tennyson predicted air transport and air warfare over one hundred and twenty years ago. Today it is vital that "the common sense of most" should exert influence to make the rest of his predictions come true; thus preventing the ultimate catastrophe, the next and final world war.

Checking Quotations

Would you please allow me to correct a quotation made in the letter of Mr. Scott in your issue of Aug. 22 where he quotes Thomas Paine as saying: "Where freedom is, that is my country." The incident referred to was at the conclusion of the American Revolution, when Benjamin Franklin said to Paine: "Where Liberty is, That is my country." To which Paine replied: "Where Liberty is NOT, That is mine."

Mr. Scott also quotes Col. Robert G. Ingersoll wrongly. It is doubtful whether there will ever live another man to possess Ingersoll's brilliancy of language. Humanity will some day be impressed with the genius who said: "To love justice, to love truth, to be sincere, to love liberty, to cultivate the mind, to see the calm beyond the storm, this is the religion of reason that satisfies the heart and brain."

Why Choose Longer Range?

In the Times of Saturday, Aug. 25, on the front page, I read "Venus Countdown Begins." It seems the U.S.A. were firing a rocket due to travel 181 million miles into space arriving within 10,000 miles of Venus Dec. 14.

In the Aug. 20 issue of the Times, under "Frontiers of Space," I read: "Venus passes closer to the earth than any other planet, 30 million miles." Just why would the U.S.A. send their rocket when at certain seasons Venus can be reached in 30 million miles.

To a dumb guy like myself it seems a bit stupid. The Soviets will beat the U.S.A. to it, if they do not wake up.

G. L. HAMMOND.

WASHINGTON:

No Part Of It

By MAX FREEDMAN

THE naval attack on a suburb of Havana by a group of refugee Cuban students in Florida could not have come at a worse time. The state department is annoyed by this attack because it tends to divert world opinion from the shipment of arms and technicians to Cuba by the Communist countries of Europe. Once again Premier Castro has a grievance against the United States. Many people will question the official denial of any United States involvement in the attack late Friday night. Yet there can be no doubt that the United States knew nothing of this attack in advance, disapproved of it, and would have stopped it before it ever left the coast of Florida.

Freedman

All dispatches from Cuba are not subject to censorship. It is important to realize, therefore, that the first reports which went out to the world on Friday night's attack were all based on what the Castro government said. Since then there have been reports by various diplomatic missions which have tended to remove some of the early exaggerations planted by the Cuban government. So far as is now known, there were no casualties. There was considerable damage to a hotel which housed many of the Communist technicians and less damage to the Chaplin Theatre where Mr. Castro has made many of his more important speeches. The naval guns on the shore of Cuba spoke belatedly against the two attacking ships but none of the students was hurt.

How did a group of students, aged 19-23, know where the Communist officials were staying and manage to come so close to the Cuban coast line without being spotted and overwhelmed by Castro's air and naval power? There is quite plainly a more extensive underground at work in Cuba than was in existence 18 months ago. There should be no surprise at this new development when one remembers the growing economic problems in Cuba. But anxious questions of policy remain to disturb the Kennedy administration and to worry world opinion.

Reconcile Policy
It will be recalled that the United States, soon after Castro took power, and the early disillusionment with the Castro regime set in, made it clear that it would try to reconcile two important but divergent principles of American policy. It would continue to apply the policy which allowed the United States to be a place of asylum for refugees and political exiles; and it would refuse to allow American soil and equipment to be used in any action that would violate American neutrality.

The first heavy strain on this program was placed when unauthorized planes flew from Florida on raiding sorties over Cuba. A system of new regulations, after a time, was put into force that has kept this particular evil under harsh restraint. It now will be necessary for the United States to enforce naval regulations that will be as stern and effective as the air controls already imposed. The coast guard has already been ordered by President Kennedy to increase its patrols off the Florida coast and stop any vessel whose purpose looks suspicious. This is a drastic order, for American history has made this country very reluctant to interfere with freedom of shipping. But the danger of involvement once again in Cuban affairs has given the United States no choice.

President Kennedy himself intervened in the state department's consideration of the naval attack to make certain that a second and more emphatic denial of any American responsibility should be published. He had a long conversation by phone with Mr. George Ball, the acting secretary of state, to review the whole situation. After this talk, the state department put out a much stronger statement in criticism of what the students had done. In addition, the state department began to inform various embassies of this country's opposition to the raid and of its determination to stop all such raids in the future, if at all possible.

Above all, the state department has informed all members of the Organization of American States that the United States will support no policy of intervention in Cuba that has not been discussed and endorsed by the inter-American system. This intensive diplomatic activity has repaired some of the damage done by the ill-fated raid but Washington does not want a repetition of that nervous weekend.

Political Union Issue Places ECM in Muddle

PERSONAL APPEAL to the Big Four heads of government to help prevent further incidents on the Berlin border wall has been made by Chancellor Adenauer of West Germany.

Rebuff Countered By Mac

LONDON (AP)—In an unprecedented move, Prime Minister Macmillan Tuesday released portions of month-old correspondence with Chancellor Adenauer of West Germany to counter an earlier rebuff by Adenauer toward British political aspirations in Europe.

Such disclosure of private correspondence between a British head of government and a foreign statesman had never before been made here, experts said.

Macmillan, plugging for active British participation in a politically unified Europe, ordered part of his letter released while he was vacationing in the north of England. The release was made in the early post-midnight hours so Macmillan's views could be made known almost simultaneously with Adenauer's.

The one quote from Macmillan's letter that was released by the prime minister said:

STATES POSITION

"We have been watching with sympathetic interest the efforts of the Common Market six to move toward greater political union and I can assure you that once the Brussels negotiations are successfully concluded, we shall wish to join wholeheartedly in this task."

BERLIN (Reuters)—Chancellor Adenauer said Tuesday the European Common Market is in "a rather unpleasant muddle" over political union.

Adenauer emphasized he favors Britain entering the Common Market and that a larger economic community could be of advantage.

But he added:

"... I think that one should not treat as one problem the question of Britain's entry to the Common Market and the question of Britain's joining the political union once she is in the Common Market."

Adenauer, referring to "this rather pitiful and boring history of the political union," said that in July last year steps were about to be taken to create a political union after a committee had worked on details.

"We all hoped to get this settled by the spring of this year when suddenly Mr. Spaak (the Belgian foreign minister) and Mr. Luns (the Dutch foreign minister) declared that they would only agree to a political union being founded if Britain first entered the Common Market."

"I do not think that Mr. Spaak now still is on this view. He recently visited me and I took it from what he said that he does no longer hold that view. I do not know about Holland's view."

Adenauer said French President de Gaulle had assured him he had never used the phrase "Europe of fatherlands" for his conception of a European political union.

Adenauer also said Britain, Norway, Denmark, Iceland and Ireland want to join the Common Market—now made up of Italy, Belgium, The Netherlands, Luxembourg, France and West Germany—and this poses the question of voting rights and of the political union.

Adenauer said the smaller European countries, especially the northern ones, have restricted economic interests and in political matters everyone has his own conceptions.

"So, what are we to do? Should we admit them as associate members? I do not think that one can put it to Norway and Denmark only to be associate members. They lie very close to the European continent, especially Denmark."

Rival Kenya Groups Fight

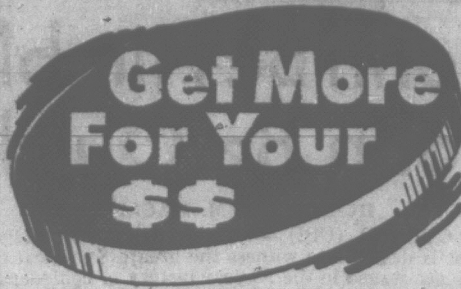

NAIROBI (Reuters)—Supporters of Jomo Kenyatta's Kenya African National Union and the rival Kenya African Democratic Union battled with fists and stones outside KADU's offices at Mombasa Tuesday.

Police patrols were started in the area as tension remained high after the incident.

The two parties are at odds over whether Kenya should have a strong central government, as KANU wishes, or more regional autonomy.

LAWYER WARNS

'Individual
Freedoms
In Danger'

HALIFAX (CP)—When does expediency in crime-fighting and law administration start to trespass on individual rights?

The Canadian Bar Association's annual meeting Tuesday considered on two fronts this fundamental problem in civil liberties.

A conclusion heard from a number of speakers was that as public demands increase for a better performance from police officers or faster work by the courts, the alternatives may be even less tasteful than less-than-perfect police work and crowded courts.

Association President S. E. Fennell of Cornwall, Ont., told a plenary session public dissatisfaction with the length of time before a case is heard in some courts—as much as three years—may result in cases—such as motor vehicle negligence—being removed from the courts to an administrative tribunal.

He urged steps—even to the point of converting offices into temporary courtrooms—to correct injustices arising from the length of time it takes cases to be heard.

He warned that the exercise of judicial functions by government-appointed administrative tribunals might lead to a denial of justice.

MAY RESTRICT RIGHTS

There were many objections to tribunals, he said, among them the fact that occasionally they acted both as prosecutor and judge in the same case.

The association's civil liberties section heard a warning from Toronto lawyer John Honsberger that if existing crime-fighting methods are not successful, there will be a demand for Parliament to pass laws which result in restriction of individual freedoms.

Since the Second World War there has been a disquieting increase in crime and a demand for better law enforcement will lead to Parliament intervening, he said. Civil liberties removed by legislation are seldom returned.

Mr. Honsberger, chairman of the association's Ontario civil liberties sub-section, expressed views he earlier presented to Mr. Justice Arthur Kelly of the Ontario Supreme Court who headed a royal commission last year into the arrest and alleged police man-handling of a rabbi in Toronto.

UNAWARE OF RIGHTS

While individuals have rights often glossed over by police, they must not exercise them selfishly to the detriment of law enforcement or eventually they will be lost, he said.

Among the rights he said most people didn't realize they had, were that they could refuse to answer questions or allow their cars to be searched at a police roadblock, or they could refuse to go to headquarters for questioning unless they were charged.

Exiles Demonstrate

NEW YORK (AP)—About 85 Cuban exiles demonstrated in Times Square Tuesday night to urge U.S. aid for their campaign to topple the regime of Premier Fidel Castro. The demonstration was without disturbance.

FOUR MASKED GUNMEN
ROB BANK OF $112,000

GEORGETOWN, British Guiana (AP)—Four masked men held up a branch of the Royal Bank of Canada Tuesday and got away with $112,000.

The bandits entered the bank just as the money was about to be transferred to MacKenzie, a bauxite mining town 65 miles up the Demerara River. They forced a cashier at gunpoint to hand over the money.

U.S. Nazi Chief Seeks Leader in Canada

MONTREAL (CP)—George Lincoln Rockwell, the leader of the U.S. Nazi party, said Tuesday night that he has enough support to start a Canadian Nazi party but can't find a leader.

He said he was in Montreal only because he had to pass through Canada on his way to U.S. and said he was not here to meet supporters.

Rockwell said he did not notify the press of his visit because he wanted to avoid antagonizing the Canadian government by "disturbances."

He said he was sure that somebody would have tried to shoot him if his visit had been widely publicized "as they would in any American city."

The Nazi leader said he had been in touch with Polish and Hungarian anti-Communist groups in Montreal only after they learned of his visit but that these groups, which he did not name, would "solidly support" a Canadian Nazi party.

He said he had only a limited knowledge of the Social Credit party.

"I know very little about the movement," he said, "except that they are a right wing group of Christians that agree with me that Communists and international financial domination should be wiped out."

However, he said he did not think Social Credit was a Nazi party, and added that they "would jump out of the window" at the idea of becoming one.

He said he was pleased that

Real Caouette, deputy national leader of the Social Credit party, was reported to have said he admires "at least the economic abilities of those great leaders, Hitler and Mussolini."

Australia's average annual wood production is more than 1,600,000,000 pounds, about 30 per cent of the world total.

MBP Opens Gates

Vancouver Island hunters today hailed the decision of MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River Limited to open its Vancouver Island logging road gates as "a step in the right direction."

The move meant that 1,728 miles of roads will now be accessible to the public in non-working hours.

The company will man the gates from 6 a.m. to 3 p.m. on Saturdays, Sundays and holidays, and when there is no fire hazard. The program will come into effect with the opening of grouse season Saturday, and will be reviewed at the end of September.

WIDE BENEFITS

The move will benefit hunters who are not members of fish and game clubs. Previously, club members and employees were given special passes to the areas.

Hunters will sign waivers relieving the company of responsibility for their safety and promise to take care of company property.

Areas affected include: Northwest Bay, near Parksville;

Horne Lake logging road, with entrance at the junction of the Alberni and Port Alberni Roads at the Alberni Valley tourist bureau (to be opened all week when fire hazard eases);

Copper Canyon, with entry off the main line road from Chemainus;

Shawnigan Lake, through Deerholme, west of Duncan (not to be opened until Sept. 15);

Salmon River area, with entrance from Kelsey Bay (50 miles north of Campbell River);

Beaufort Tree Farm area, with entrance at Buckley Bay (south of Courtenay), to be opened all week when the fire hazard eases.

Only exception is the Nanaimo River Camp, which is in the Nanaimo watershed and where the Nanaimo Fish and Game Club will continue to man the gates.

Bert Barnabe Wins Seniors

HULL, Que. (CP) — N. D. "Bert" Barnabe, 55, of Montreal Laval, returned Tuesday to the Rivermead course where he began playing nearly 40 years ago to win the Canadian Seniors' Golf Association tournament.

Barnabe, in his first year with the organization of golfers 55 years and over, turned in a four-over-par 76 after carding a hot 73 Monday at the neighboring Royal Ottawa for a 149 total, three better than defending titlist C. R. (Sandy) Somerville of the London Hunt Club.

Alex Milne of the Ottawa Hunt Club finished third with 153.

'ACE' ANGLER 'PAYS' $200 FOR CATCHES

MOUNT VERNON, Wash. (CP) — A young Coast Guardsman who admitted raiding a cannery to keep up his reputation as a champion angler has paid $200 for stolen salmon. Next week he'll learn the court penalty.

Ron J. Bodey, 22, of Everett, Wash., pleaded guilty Monday to second degree burglary. He admitted breaking into the Whiz Fish Products Co. plant at nearby Laconner nearly a dozen times during his period his supposed salmon-catching exploits were getting national publicity.

He said he felt "under pressure from the press, radio and television" to maintain his image of a great fisherman.

Superior court judge Charles Stafford deferred sentence until Sept. 4 to learn whether the Coast Guard would keep Bodey in service if he is put on probation.

Esquimalt Coho Derby Awaits Only the Fish

By IAN SMITH

The Esquimalt Angling Association steps into the saltwater spotlight this weekend as it stages its annual Cerebral Palsy coho derby.

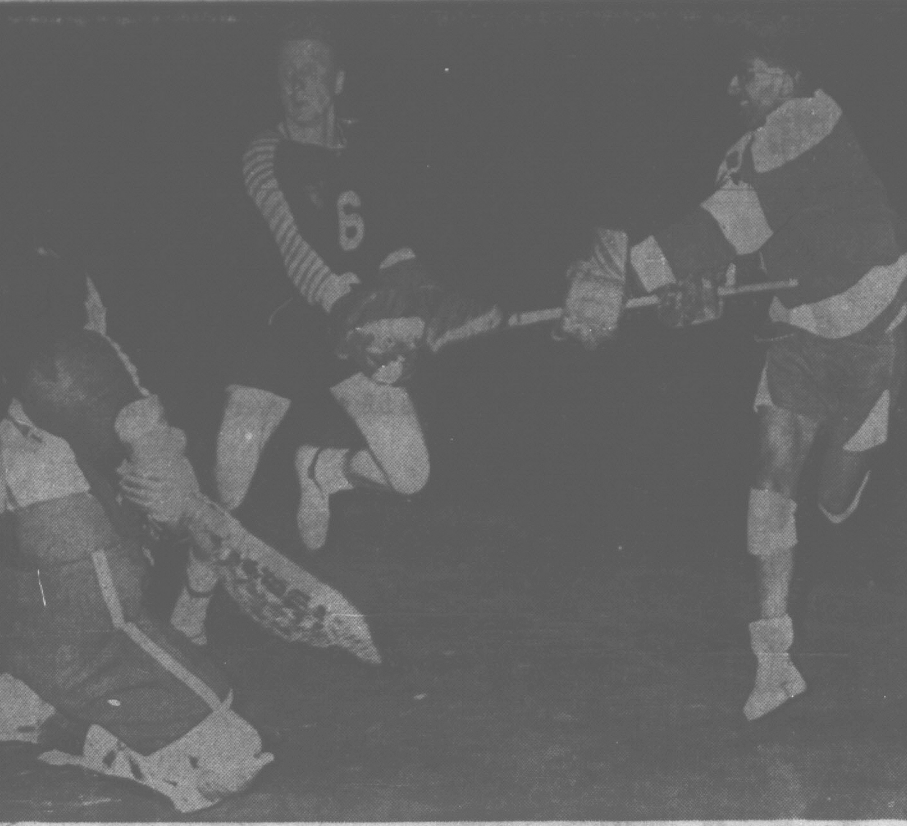

Derby organizers just hope that the salmon co-operate.

History indicates that the silvers have a habit of hitting during the Labor Day weekend. "We certainly hope it will be so this time," said Jim Smart, one of the derby officials.

"It's funny. Some years we've had no fish come in for the first two days, and then they hit it big on the last day."

"It looks as if the coho are starting now, though; we had a few in last weekend. One thing is for certain—we're hoping."

'EAVANS, 'ARRY, 'IS 'EAD'S GONE!

Aghast expression adopted by Bill Dalzell (6) of South Vancouver Legion seems to indicate great concern for head that isn't there on goalie Jim Serr. Actually, goal-scoring effort by Victoria's Ranje Dillon (right) shocked Legion player.

Goalie Serr might have felt like hiding head later, though. Shamrocks got to him for 20 goals and an easy victory in Memorial Arena tussle that sends Victoria against Brampton in Canadian junior lacrosse final here starting next Tuesday.

JUNIOR GOLF

Vollmer Leads B.C. to Title

MONCTON (CP) — The Canadian junior golf championship swings into its first round today in the wake of a solid six-stroke victory for British Columbia youngsters in the four-man interprovincial team struggle contested by eight teams.

The west coast boys wrapped it up Tuesday with a steady afternoon-round display that brushed aside the challenging Manitoba squad and gave British Columbia the title with an aggregate medal score of 601.

It was British Columbia's first win since the 36-hole team test was inaugurated in 1959 and it ended a two-year reign by Ontario, which finished fourth. Quebec, 1959 winner, finished fifth.

Manitoba was tied with British Columbia at 306 after Tuesday's morning round but weakened slightly in the afternoon and at the end held only a one-stroke margin over Nova Scotia, which finished with 608.

The team play was coupled with the 36-hole qualifying round for the Canadian junior title, vacated by 1961 winner Terry Campbell of Vancouver because he is over-age.

Indications were that there will be a wide open scramble for the crown. Based on Tuesday's medal scores, Brian Fulton of Toronto and Ken Fulton of Winnipeg rate prior claim.

Wilcox knocked two strokes off the Moncton club's par 70 in the morning with a 68 and finished with 142.

Every man of the British Columbia team qualified for today's play and B.C. was the only team to enter the match-play championship tussle intact. Wayne Vollmer of Vancouver shot 144, putting together two rounds of 72, and was eight strokes better than his nearest teammates.

Brian McCormick of Kelowna and Ian Daniel of Vancouver both fired 152, and Doug Reid of Vancouver stood just one stroke back.

Floyd's Secret Weapon Doesn't Frighten Liston

By HARRY GRAYSON
SOUTH FALLS, N.Y. (NEA)—Sonny Liston, at his camp in the Catskills, was reading a magazine article purporting to disclose Floyd Patterson's secret weapon.

The awesome instrument of destruction with which the heavyweight champion will defend the title at Comiskey Park in Chicago Sept. 25 is pride, according to the magazine piece, which is unsigned but reads like it might have been written by Gus D'Amato, the titleholder's wild-talking manager.

"Patterson could hit me a million times with pride and not even make a dent," chuckled Liston.

REASON FOR FERRY CUT WANTED BY VANCOUVER

VANCOUVER (CP) — Vancouver city council is going to ask the Canadian Pacific Railway to explain its reason for planning to cut its Vancouver-Nanaimo ferry run to one-boat service Oct. 1.

Aldermen made the decision Tuesday after Ald. Halford Wilson said council should be concerned about the effect of the service cut on Vancouver residents and the tourist industry.

Alderman Wilson said the CPR, heavily subsidized by the federal government, has a responsibility to the public to maintain service and proper passenger facilities. After Oct. 1 the single ferry would load at the old immigration dock here where there are no waiting room facilities.

1,000 DRUNKS YEARLY

Dreary Parade Six Days a Week

By LESLIE MILLIN

How many drunks are there in Victoria?

Nobody knows.

But about a thousand convictions for being intoxicated in a public place go through Greater Victoria police courts every year.

Some are one-shot offenders, often young people who have had one too many before going home from a party.

Most of them are veterans, picked up regularly, their faces familiar to police court officials.

Every morning at 10, six days a week, city police court sits at the police station on Fisgard St. Almost every day there are persons charged with being intoxicated in a public place.

THREE DAILY

A tally kept indicates that the average is three a day.

Their trials are usually brief.

"You are charged . . . being intoxicated . . . in a public place, contrary to the statute in such case made and provided . . ."

"Plead guilty, your honor."

"Fined $10, in default two days . . . fined $25 . . . sentenced to 20 days . . ."

"We have to lock them up. If they didn't work the alcohol out of their systems every so often, they'd drink themselves to death," says city prosecutor Angus Smith.

LOOK DEATHLY

A few of them look pretty close to death in the dock—trembling, staggering, mumbling their pleas.

Sometimes they fall, and a constable must carry them out. Sometimes they get drunk as soon as released, and police find them asleep on sidewalks in the middle of winter.

Sometimes they die there, and police must pick up the remains.

Flees Gun and All

VIENNA (AP)—A Czechoslovak soldier, in full uniform and with his submachine-gun, fled to Austria Monday and asked for political asylum. Austrian police today identified him as Jaromir Rachfalik, 21. He entered Austria near Waidhofen and was being held pending a decision on his request.

Seat Belt Law Proposed As Fast Way to Cut Toll

Builders Jump Gun At Ground-Breaking

Ground-breaking was already under way Tuesday when Mayor R. B. Wilson appeared at the site of View Street parking garage to perform the ceremonial act.

Ald. Michael Griffin, parking committee chairman, said he hoped the contractor would continue to be ahead of himself until finishing the 400-car facility before Nov. 20 opening. Mayor Wilson made the work official by pulling a power shovel control that dumped a scoop of earth into a truck, ending "at long last many delays and frustrations" in start of the project.

START SOON

He anticipated a start soon on the second of two planned garages, a 200-car building at Langley and Yates.

Need for legislation making car seat belts compulsory in British Columbia was stressed Tuesday by B.C. motor-vehicle superintendent George Lindsay.

Mr. Lindsay also predicted that Canadian Highway Safety Conference will soon put its weight behind a move for laws requiring seat belts in all provinces.

Last year, Mr. Lindsay pointed out, both the national safe-driving group and B.C. Safety Council postponed a bid for seat belt legislation in the belief that motorists should first be educated to the need for the belts.

"We've had about 30 years to learn," Mr. Lindsay said, "and educational programs are not reaching enough people. Car owners won't buy anything of this sort they don't have to buy."

Best form of seat belt legislation for B.C. would be a law requiring new cars entering the province to come rigged with the safety devices.

Compulsory use of belts, the bureau superintendent feels, is the fast way to cut highway fatalities, since an estimated 50 to 75 per cent of persons killed in car mishaps last year "would be alive today if seat belt installations had been mandatory, and those people had used them."

The slow way—driver education—should not be neglected as a means of reducing accidents, Mr. Lindsay warned.

"We must have greater education at high school level and tougher enforcement," he said. "In some cases, our penalties are too lenient."

August, a holiday month, has seen 26 die on B.C. roads, and the 1962 death toll to date stands at 207.

(Indication that proposals for compulsory seat belts might be received coolly by government came from Attorney-General Robert Bonner, through whose department any such legislation would have to be channelled. The decision regarding seat belts for drivers, Mr. Bonner feels, should be in the hands of the individual operator.)

Naturalists Hope Flock of Geese 'Extinct' Breed

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP)—A study is under way to determine whether a flock of geese that winter annually on Silver Lake, in Rochester, Minn., are Greater Canada Geese, thought to be extinct for 75 years.

The extinct geese—a large, heavy bird, are a sub-species called maxima. Dr. Harold Hanson, of the Illinois natural history survey, is making the study.

Dave Vesall, supervisor of the Minnesota conservation department bureau of game, said Dr. Hanson has been asked to make suggestions for management of the flock of about 6,000 if they turn out to be the Greater Canada variety.

Dr. Hanson is expected to make a scientific report on his study later this year. He was reported in Canada making observations in the northern nesting area.

MONTE ROBERTS

It is hard for an old-timer to believe, but this winter only one "Princess" steamer will be operating on the whole vast British Columbia coast.

Never mind giving me all the reasons why the CPR Princesses are following the dinosaur and the great auk into the dim recesses of memory.

Don't bother explaining that people want to travel in their cars; that they prefer the shortest possible water trips between highway terminals; that the CPR pulled a boner when it continued to order pocket liners for the coastal trade; that this type of vessel was doomed even before the government started in the tin can ferry business; that economy and progress have outdated the luxurious Princess steamers.

Just leave me alone and let me weep at the prospect of only one Princess steamer on the whole, evergreen coast of this province.

And this one not even a Princess in the purest sense; more a Princess up topside and a ferryboat down inside.

It is, indeed, hard to believe all the old, glorious services extended by the Princess steamers are no more. It seems only yesterday when the B.C. Coast Service was just that—a service to the B.C. coast, unexcelled for courtesy, comfort and convenience.

The Princess steamers ran between Victoria and Vancouver and Seattle, with both day and night services. They connected the Gulf Islands to the mainland, they ran up the picturesque west coast of Vancouver Island, to Prince Rupert and Alaska, between Vancouver and Nanaimo. There were even services to Powell River and Comox.

And the steamers!—powerful, fast and pretty, they made even a prosaic run across the gulf from the mainland to Nanaimo a deepsea adventure.

Next winter—just one Princess service left.

The only consolation is we can still slip down to the Inner Harbor at noontime, watch Marguerite and Patricia side by side, and dream of the dear dead days beyond recall.

JIMMY MURRAY

PLAQUE HONORS MARINES

A detachment of University Naval Training Division cadets who have been taking summer training at Royal Roads will visit San Juan Island Sept. 6 to install a plaque honoring Royal Marines buried there.

The marines died during the British-American joint occupation of the island following the "pig war."

Last year UNTD cadets made a weekend expedition to the island, cleaning up the historic cemetery.

Boy Missing After Squabble at Arena

A 13-year-old Esquimalt boy who stamped out of Esquimalt Arena in a huff Monday noon is still missing.

Jimmy Murray, 1137 Bewdley, has become the object of a police hunt over lower Vancouver Island.

Foul play is not suspected as yet, but fear for his safety—he wore neither jacket nor shoes—is mounting.

Jimmy is slight, four feet eight inches tall, and has light brown hair cut in a crewcut.

He was last seen wearing ice skates, blue jeans and a blue tartan shirt, riding a maroon bicycle with a carrier on front and racing-style handlebars bent forward.

SQUABBLE

Esquimalt police say Jimmy is believed to have left the Esquimalt arena after a squabble with some friends there.

He rode away on his bicycle and vanished.

His mother, Mrs. J. A. Murray, believes he may have headed for Shawnigan Lake where some friends have a summer cabin.

"He hitch-hikes on the Malahat all the time," she said.

"He may have ditched his bike in the woods and caught a ride."

Beard Judging Set As Opener Of Logging Games

Wives and girl friends of hairy-jowelled Victorians who have used their city's centenary as an excuse not to shave, will be glad to hear that beard-judging will open the Pacific Northwest Logging Games Sept. 14.

This means that many will be removing their beards the day after.

Centennial Society officials said today that the judging of beards, many of which have been cultivated since January, will open the two-day logging championships.

Prizes will be awarded for the best all-round and the most unusual beard, among other categories.

Ronald Emlen, HMCS Skeena, was fined $10 in Esquimalt police court today for having no current B.C. driver's licence, and $10 for having no current B.C. licence plates.

He told the court that his licence and plates were subsisting Alberta issue. He had been permanently posted to Esquimalt six months ago.

Sudbury II, Island Tug and Barge Ltd.'s biggest towboat, is back at work after refit following a series of trans-Pacific towing jobs.

With the brand-new barge Island Exporter in tow, she has just completed the first in a series of runs from Blubber Bay to Portland, Ore., with 8,500 tons of Texaco Island linercock.

Washington State ferry service between Sidney and Anacortes will revert to two round trips daily, effective Sept. 5.

Ferries will leave Sidney at 1 p.m. and 4.45 p.m., until Oct. 22, when the single trip winter schedule goes into effect.

Victorians will have a chance to see highlights of their city's centennial celebrations during centennial week on television tonight.

CBC will present shots of the pageant and other events on Channel 2 at 10 p.m. during the program Sightline.

VICTORIA, B.C., WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 29, 1962—PAGE 13

24,300 Going Back To Studies Tuesday

Report Times Set For Record Lists

A record 24,300 pupils will go tripping back to school on Tuesday in Greater Victoria.

Registration has been going on all week at schools throughout District No. 61, and teachers have been building up their strength all summer.

The Greater Victoria School Board has hired 23 more teachers than last year to cope with the estimated increase of 900 students over the 1961-62 school year.

Facilities of all schools will be stretched to the limit, the school board reported.

No pupils have been permitted to register in schools other than those serving the area in which they live.

SHORT-TERM SHIFTS

While shift systems will be in operation at Glanford, Shelbourne, Tillicum, Macaulay and Mackenzie Avenue elementary schools, progress of the current school building program approved by ratepayers last October is expected to end shifts at the majority of these in the first two months.

Secondary schools will not have to use the shift system. Pupils enrolled in elementary schools are instructed to report at 9 a.m. Tuesday.

Pupils of junior and senior high schools will report during the morning as follows: grade 7, 9 a.m.; grade 8, 10 a.m.; grade 9, 11 a.m.; grade 10, 9 a.m.; grade 11, 10 a.m. and grade 12, 11 a.m.

Classes will be held in the morning only at all schools. Real work begins Wednesday.

BY MAIL

Kindergarten pupils will be notified when to report through the mail.

The only exception to the reporting program is Macaulay Elementary. Pupils of this school should contact either the school board office or the school itself for instructions.

In Saanich School District 63 it is expected around 3,000 pupils will report Tuesday morning.

Pupils of all but two schools will start their school year at 9 a.m. Royal Oak Junior Secondary School will report at 8:30, and Claremont Senior Secondary pupils at 9:30 a.m.

In Sooke School District No. 62 an estimated 2,800 pupils will converge on their respective schools at 9 a.m. Tuesday.

Federal Probe Of CPR Asked By V.I. Socred

Campbell Knocks Accounting System

Comox Social Credit MLA Dan Campbell today said there should be a federal royal commission to investigate the "entire accounting procedure" of the Canadian Pacific Railway.

If the provincial legislature was meeting now, he said he would introduce a resolution asking for immediate review.

"Such a review would be quite justified in view of the fact that this company has, not only been heavily subsidized with taxpayers monies, but richly endowed with public lands as well," Mr. Campbell said.

He previously stated the CPR should not be allowed to withdraw the main part of its Nanaimo-Vancouver ferry service because this would be abrogation of the terms under which the CPR received large land timber and mineral grants on Vancouver Island.

Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow supports the view and on Tuesday called for a provincial investigation of the CPR.

BONNER COOL

Attorney-General Robert Bonner said today he thought a royal commission would serve no useful purpose because the CPR has been the subject of at least two inquiries in recent years and its operation has not altered as a result.

Mr. Campbell said the principle involved goes far beyond Vancouver Island.

"The real issue is whether, as Canadian taxpayers, we are going to continue to subsidize the transportation end of this company's operations when the value of their real estate has no part in the accounting procedures that determine the profit picture."

$2,500 Bail Set In Forgery Case

Bail of $2,500 was granted in Victoria County Court today to Stanley John Bullivant, charged with uttering five forged cheques to a total value of $478.

Bullivant is committed to stand trial at the Fall Assizes in B.C. Supreme Court, which open on Monday, Oct. 1.

He was committed in RCMP court by Magistrate A. I. Thomas on Aug. 23.

The cheques he is alleged to have forged were cashed at the Colwood branch of the Canadian Bank of Commerce last May.

PAUL SMITH

NORTH POLE CALL

Maybe It Was Jolly Old Santa!

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Smith, 2009 Cook Street, were out when their phone rang Sunday.

Lots of people are out when their phone rings, but what depressed Mr. and Mrs. Smith was that their call was from the North Pole, Isachsen to be exact.

Malcolm Pope used to live with the Smiths. Now he is stationed in the frozen wastes well inside the Arctic Circle at a department of transport weather station.

LOCATION

Isachsen, named after a Dutch brewer who financed the trip which explored the area, is situated in an inlet on the west coast of Ellef Ringnes Island.

It faces on to the Prince Gustav Adolf Sea in the Arctic Ocean.

The Smiths think Malcolm, whose address is grid reference 78 degrees 47 minutes north by 103 degrees 30 minutes west, was their caller from the North Pole.

Now they are wondering why he called.

THANK YOU

The call was relayed to Victoria by "ham" radio operators—how many they don't know. But they are anxious to thank them for trying to contact them.

The Smiths said they're not leaving their phone EV 3-9585 just in case one of the "hams" phones again.

They also wonder if it is possible to phone the North Pole from Victoria.

TOPICS OF THE DAY

Jaycees have $90 in 50-cent pieces they don't know what to do with.

The money is in the Junior Chamber of Commerce office, 1217 Douglas Street, and belongs to those who bought guesses in a contest at the Jaycee fair in May. The contest was closed because its legality was questioned.

Owners either can call at the office to retrieve their half-dollars, or donate the money to Victoria College's development fund.

A gift of undisclosed amount has been recommended by Capital Improvement District Commission to the B.C. cabinet to help Victoria build its centennial square.

But it will be a month or more before the cabinet deals with the suggestion, a government official said.

The square is planned as a civic precinct that will renew a two-block downtown area including city hall.

Performers in the 1,000-member cast of Victoria's centennial pageant will be given a certificate of appreciation signed by the mayor.

The certificates may be picked up by the individual centennial office, Douglas Street.

Neil Gordon Dalgety pleaded not guilty in city police court today on the first of five counts of uttering a forged document.

Trial is set for Sept. 13.

Victoria Aged Pensioners' Association No. 3 will hold its monthly general meeting in the Legion Hall, 1616 Blanshard, next Tuesday at 1:30 p.m.

Members will be guests of Cedar Hill Golf Club each Friday next month.

Among Victorians named recently as scholarship winners: from the University of British Columbia was Charles Brown, 1651 Fairfield.

He received over 80 per cent average marks to win the scholarship, to pay for next year's tuition.

William John McClintchey, 823 Darwin, pleaded not guilty in city police court today to a charge of impaired driving and was remanded to Sept. 4 for trial.

A modest increase in the number of Adams River sockeye salmon through the Strait of Juan de Fuca has resulted in a two-day extension to seine and gillnet operations in the waters west of the William Head-Port Angeles line, the federal fisheries department office said today.

However, no reports have been received yet from seiners, which resumed fishing Tuesday morning, or from gillnetters, which started again this morning.

Seining in the western end of Juan de Fuca will be permitted until 6 p.m. Friday and gillnetting until 6 a.m. Saturday.

VICTORIAN 'LITTLE UNFORTUNATE' IN NOT FINDING MACKENZIE'S GRAVE

Och! Awa' Wi' Ye . . . Of Course the Scots Honor Their Famous Sons

By IAIN HUNTER

For a while it appeared as if Scotland had forgotten one of her famous sons.

The suggestion came from several distraught Victorians who were convinced the grave of Sir Alexander Mackenzie was lost. They thought Scotsmen had forgotten the famous explorer.

They should have known better.

Following a report in the Times that Fred Maurice, 3921 Braefoot Place, had been unable to locate Sir Alexander's grave while in Scotland, Dr. David Turner, deputy minister of recreation and conservation, wrote to the Scottish Tourist Board.

"Perhaps our fellow Scots don't realize that Sir Alexander Mackenzie was the first white man to cross the North American Continent from east to west," he wrote. He charged the tourist board with the task of unearthing the grave of the man who explored the Mackenzie River to the Arctic Ocean and who reached the Pacific Ocean by land.

The noble lords on the board, including the Duke of Atholl and the Earl of Rosebery, were horrified.

A document, covered with Scottish thistles, was dispatched to Dr. Turner. It bore a message as sharp as the flower with which it was decorated.

"I was a little surprised to find the article stating that Sir Alexander Mackenzie was not known to the Scots, as I would say most Scots know of Sir Alexander Mackenzie, the river being named in his honor, and his further journeys to the Pacific," public relations officer Iain Anderson wrote.

The letter went on:

"Sir Alexander Mackenzie married in 1812 Geddes Mackenzie, who, in the Scottish phrase, brought to her husband the property of Avoch (pronounced Auch) in Inverness-shire. In the course of a journey from London by coach with Lady Mackenzie and his family, Sir Alexander became seriously ill near Pitlochry. The coach was stopped at a then coaching inn at Moulin Earn, south of Pitlochry, and Sir Alexander was taken into the inn, where he died the following morning, the 12th of March, 1820.

"His body was taken to Avoch, and he lies buried in the Mackenzie plot in the churchyard there, where his wife, who died some 40 years later, is also buried."

Photographs showing the grave, with the headstone set in the churchyard wall, accompanied the letter.

"The keeper of the graveyard," Mr. Anderson continued, "who maintains the Mackenzie enclosure in trim condition because of the fame of Sir Alexander, (said) that he has many Canadians visiting the grave of this famous man."

He concluded that Mr. Maurice "was probably a little unfortunate when he sought this information in not succeeding in finding the grave."

A note furiously scribbled at the bottom of the last page by a board member read:

"Pass this information to your local newspaper who suggested to its readers that we in Scotland do not honor our famous sons!"

Never again, m'lord, never again.

Knee Savers for Gardener Will Aid Floor Washer, Too

By PENNY SAVER

"How's your gardening coming?" I asked Linda the other day.

"Oh... fine... I guess," she answered dubiously and with obvious lack of enthusiasm. "It's just that it's getting close to the time when I have to start taking up my gladioli, dahlias and the begonias and I hate getting down on my knees in the damp grass or earth."

"Why don't you get something to put under your knees?" I suggested.

"Why don't YOU find me something I can put under them?" she countered.

So... Penny Saver went knee-saver shopping. And there are such things!

They are thick, spongy, durable, knee-shaped rubber pads that have an adjustable strap to fit around backs of knees. They stay put when worn either over or under clothing.

Paying the $2.95 price will also provide you with knee pads for washing and waxing floors.

I've never said Linda didn't have a green thumb, but I've found the answer to such accusations. They are gardening gloves, beige for women, tan for men, which have green thumbs. Besides being novel, they are vinyl-treated to repel dirt and are washable. Price is $1.19.

To save her some confusion next spring, when it comes time to replant the gladioli and the begonias, I also advised Linda to buy painted wood tags with wire ends which she can attach to her precious flowers as she takes them up.

To label colors and varieties, she also bought a weather-proof pencil for 20 cents. Tags come in bundles of a dozen for 15 cents or 100 for 85 cents.

Comfort, novelty and system have renewed Linda's enthusiasm for her garden. Why not yours, too? Call Penny at 382-3131 for name of shop where these supplies are available.

DEAR ABBY: When my daughter-in-law asked my son to diaper the baby, I almost fainted! I never raised my boy to do things like that. My daughter-in-law has our son making formula and all such sissy stuff that a wife should do. I say a man should earn the living and it's the woman's job to raise the children. When a woman starts shoving womanly duties off on a man, he loses stature in the sight of others. Please print this. It is getting to be a national disease.

DISGUSTED.

DEAR DISGUSTED: I don't see anything wrong with a man diapering babies or making formulas. Perhaps the reason so many children grow up to regard Father as only the money-maker is because Father has fulfilled that function and none other. Raising children should be a joint effort. I'm for it. You rattled the wrong cage.

DEAR ABBY: I have a friend who cannot pass a mirror without looking at himself. I say it is a sign of conceit. He says it isn't. He claims he just likes to be sure he looks okay. He is the only boy I know who actually carries a mirror! I would like your opinion of a boy who has to look at himself all the time. A NAMELESS FRIEND.

Mr. and Mrs. C. V. Wilkinson, 1870 Ruby Road, left, will celebrate their golden wedding anniversary this Sunday with an "at home" for their friends from 2 to 5 p.m. Here for the occasion are Mr. Wilkinson's sister and brother, Miss Nancy Wilkinson, and Mr. William Wilkinson, at right, from Leicester, Eng. This is the first time the three have been together in 50 years. The Wilkinsons were married on Sept. 3, 1912, in Holy Trinity Church at Toronto with Rev. D. T. Owen officiating. They lived in Prince Rupert for many years, where both were active in community affairs, before coming to Victoria 20 years ago. They have three daughters, Mrs. J. C. McCubbin (Ruth), Mrs. C. L. Madill (Edith) and Mrs. Jack Doughty-Davis (Betty), all of Victoria. There will be a dinner on Monday to mark the anniversary when 17 of the family will be present.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

How Reader Overcame Perspiration Problem

A letter from a reader says, "If you can't beat it, learn to live with it." The letter came after this woman had read my recent column concerning excessive perspiration. In case you missed that column, I said that a distinguished dermatologist told me that such perspiration is usually due to extreme nervousness. The reader has some additional helpful hints for those of you who have this difficulty. While this is not a serious condition, it is an annoying and embarrassing one. It is also expensive because it often ruins clothes.

"Dear Mrs. Lowman:

"Your recent column about excessive perspiration was a boon to my soul. It gave me no miraculous cure, but the fact that other people have had to cope with the same situation was a comfort and a consolation.

"At different times I have asked doctors for advice, but only got a polite, 'If that's all you have the matter with you, you are lucky' kind of retort. Over the years I have worked out the following plan. While it may not be the most glamorous, it can be attractive and it may give other women a little comfort.

"I wear absorbent lingerie, and skirts with varied types of blouses, all washable. I wear cotton bras and cotton or rayon slips. There are lovely, dressy, washable blouses which will do for any occasion short of formal ones. I stick to white or pastels because perspiration shows very little on these. AND, I have the comfort of knowing that I am not ruining my clothes. All of this makes me more relaxed which helps, too."

Shoe running mates—To balance and go with the talked-about high-standing wide collars, muffled or wrapped necklines, wide fur bandings at hemlines, great coats with sweeping back motion: Higher than medium heels, narrow snip and bevelled toes, shoe design that puts the main emphasis on silhouette, shape and material. The shoe boot is a natural.

Excessive perspiration can be a vicious circle. You have it because you are nervous, and surely big, underarm rings are not conducive to making one less tense.

The person with this condition should have a physical examination since it is symptomatic of some diseases, although this is not generally the case.

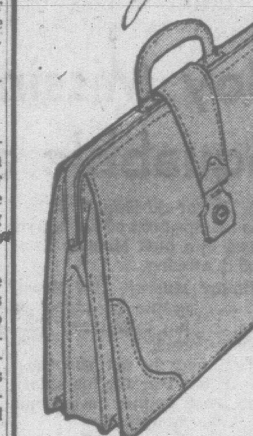

If you would like to have my exercises for relaxing, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for leaflet No. 24 to Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

Watch Makeup!

If you feel that your appearance isn't quite right when you step out in your late summer clothes, it could be that the make-up colors you're wearing are a carry-over from early summer fashions.

To create the best possible overall look with the season's colors, change your make-up shades and nail coloring accordingly. Use sun pastels—pinks, corals, peach—and as summer advances, wear slightly deeper foundation and powder.

You'll find that this color change will make a big difference in the way you look in your summer wardrobe.

WHAT CONSTITUTES ONE A CHRISTIAN?

All will agree that a Christian is one who believes in and follows Christ. "If any man will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross, and follow me" (Matt. 16:24). One cannot follow Christ unless he knows what Christ did. What did Christ do? The answer to that question can be found only in the Scriptures. They testify that He studied God's Word and from it He learned where He stood upon the stream of time. With this knowledge, together with His experiences in His daily life which He by faith accepted as God's providence for Him, He realized that God was drawing Him to His service and so in accord therewith He came to the Jordan where John was baptizing and said, "Lo, I come (in the volume of the book it is written of me) to do thy will, O God" (Heb. 10:7; Psa. 40:7, 8). It was there and then He was begotten of God's spirit and became the Son of God (Heb. 1:5); and it was then God testified saying, "This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased" (Matt. 3:17). From that day on Christ was absorbed in doing God's will as revealed to Him in the Scriptures, laying down His life daily, even unto death.

So it is also with the follower of Christ. He realizes that God's providence in his life is God's drawing. He feeds upon the Scriptures to learn of God's will concerning himself, and he in turn comes to his Jordan, and just as Christ used David's words to express His baptism into the will of God, so each follower can use the same words concerning his own baptism into Christ; namely, "Lo, I come (in the volume of the book it is written of me) to do thy will, O God." "I delight to do thy will" (Heb. 10:7; Psa. 40:7, 8; Eph. 1:4, 5).

Such a one has thus taken his first step in following Christ and he, too, is begotten of God's spirit through the Word of truth (1 Pet. 1:23), and the spirit of God witnesses (through the Scriptures) with his spirit (his intelligence) that he is a son of God, and if a son, then an heir of God, and a joint heir with Christ (Rom. 8:17). From that day on he is absorbed in doing God's will as revealed in the Scriptures and from a study of them he learns where he stands upon the stream of time, to the end that he may know daily God's will concerning himself. It is only by so doing one can know God's will in all wisdom and spiritual understanding and so become an intelligent collaborer with God (1 Cor. 3:9; Col. 1:9), always abounding in the work of the Lord as God opens unto him the doors of opportunity.

It is well to take heed to the Apostle's admonition: "Examine yourselves, whether ye be in the faith; prove your own selves" (2nd Cor. 13:5). Don't expect someone else to do it for you for no man can judge another in regard to his relationship to God. "Man looketh on the outward appearance, but the Lord looketh on the heart" (1 Sam. 16:7).

Many think of a Christian as one who is noble and kind, gentle and good, and while a Christian should strive to be all that and more, that does not constitute him a Christian. Such men are found in and out of all forms of religion—Buddhism, Confucianism, Mohammedanism—if I may use the term, "Christianity" in its many organizations, great and small. So long as men of faith and honor have been able to exercise some influence in these organizations they have to that extent benefited the people morally and spiritually. But it should be borne in mind that true Christianity is not a religion. Christianity is the outcome of men endeavoring to transform Christianity into a religion for political or other motives. It brings honor and glory to men while ostensibly giving it to God. It is of man and by man. Christianity is a calling, an individual matter, a choosing, not of man nor by man, directly or indirectly, but of God. "And no man taketh this honour unto himself, but it is that which is called of God" (Heb. 5:4, 5). Christ declared, "No man can come to me, except the Father which hath sent me draw him" (John 6:44). And the Apostle Paul testified: "It is not of him that willeth nor of him that runneth, but of God that sheweth mercy" (Rom. 9:16). Again he states, "Ye see your calling, brethren, how that not many wise men after the flesh, not many mighty, not many noble, are called. But God hath chosen the foolish things of the world to confound the wise; and God hath chosen the weak things of the world to confound the things which are mighty; and base things of the world, and things which are despised, hath God chosen, yea, and things which are not, to bring to nought things that are: that no flesh should glory in his presence" (1 Cor. 1:26-29).

A Christian, believing the Scriptures to be God's Word, believes:

1. "Without faith it is impossible to please him (God): for he that cometh to God must believe that He is, and that He is a rewarder of them that diligently seek him" (Heb. 11:6).

2. The Hebrew Scriptures are the Word of truth, as Christ declared when He said, "Thy word is truth" (John 17:17). On the surface they are but the record of the lives of certain individuals with whom it is claimed God dealt, and the history of the Israelites and prophecies relating to them, but hidden therein is to be found the truth concerning the origin of man and God's plan and purpose for man and how He is going to carry out that purpose, which revelation can be found nowhere else. "Seek and ye shall find; knock, and it shall be opened unto you" (Matt. 7:7).

3. Christ and His apostles made clear the teachings of the Hebrew Scriptures and the New Testament in the record thereof. (Isa. 8:20; Acts 28:23).

4. God's purpose is to make man in His own image, after His own likeness. (Gen. 1:26).

5. God will reconcile the universe unto Himself. "Wherefore God also hath highly exalted Him (Christ), and given Him a name which is above every name: that at the name of Jesus every knee should bow, of things in heaven, and things in earth, and things under the earth: and that every tongue should confess that Jesus Christ is Lord, to the glory of God the Father" (Phil. 2:9-11; Rom. 14:11; Isa. 45:22-24).

So we see the Scriptures teach that every man, including you and me, will in God's due time be made in God's image, after His likeness, possessing and enjoying blessings such as the "eye hath not seen, nor ear heard, neither have entered into the heart of man, the things which God hath prepared for them that love Him" (1 Cor. 2:9), and all ultimately will love Him. "To love God means to love His justice, His wisdom, His power and His abounding loving kindness, and to obey His commandments" (John 14:15, 21; Jer. 31:33).

"O death, where is thy sting? O grave, where is thy victory?" (1 Cor. 15:55). If God fails to reconcile but one to Himself death can say, "There is my sting" and the grave can say, "There is my victory."

A Christian is one who is by God sanctified or set apart in the world to serve Him and so while in the world is not of it (read John 15). There are two main props to the world—international finance and organized religion. All world powers have been built thereon, but the spirit of God does not dwell therein—the spirit of wisdom, the spirit of justice, the spirit of power honestly exercised, and the spirit of love—and so we read, "If any man love the world, the love of the Father is not in him" (1 John 2:15; John 17:16, 17). Nevertheless, while in the world the Christian must "provide things honest in the sight of all men" and be subject unto "the powers that be" (Rom. 12:17; 1 Tim. 5:8; Rom. 13:1-7).

All religions other than Christianity reject the Scriptures as the Word of God. Christianity accepts them only nominally and misuses them to inject fear into the minds of men, which fear the Scriptures say is "taught by the precept of men" (Isa. 29:13), whereas the truth of God's Word fills one's heart and mind with joy and gladness, causing one to love God with all his heart, mind, soul and strength, and his neighbor as himself. "To the law and to the testimony: if they speak not according to this word it is because there is no light in them" (Isa. 8:20).

Awake Christians! Awake and put on your garments of glory and beauty! Be clothed with the Word of God, and then the words of your mouth and the meditations of your heart will be acceptable in His sight.

Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Vickers, 1705 Fernwood Road, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Lois Jeanette, to Mr. Phillip Richard Lutz, son of Mr. and Mrs. O. Pezzoli of Qualicum Beach, B.C. The wedding will take place Friday, Sept. 21, at 7:15 p.m. in St. John's Church. (Jus-Rite Portrait Studio, Roy Strable photographer.)

Early Apples Can Be Frozen

Here's good news for home-makers who would like to freeze early apples to make up into pies during the winter months. Home economists have done a great many tests on early apples such as the Duchess and Transparent varieties which have a very short storage life and normally brown quickly when frozen. They have found that mixing the sliced apples in a sugar-ascorbic acid mixture is the answer to retaining good color in the apples. The ascorbic acid can be obtained in either crystalline or tablet form from any drugstore.

Choose apples that are ripe and firm. Prepare only enough apples at a time for one pie. Measure 1/2 teaspoon crystalline or powdered ascorbic acid, or

Godmother's Gift—Opal Pendant

An opal pendant, gift of her godmother, Mrs. Charles McGaw, was only jewelry worn by Thelma Agnes Hogan when she became the bride of Thomas John Holland in a recent ceremony in St. Mark's Anglican Church.

Her white lace, floor-length gown was styled with fitted bodice, scalloped neckline, lily point sleeves and a train. A double crown coronet of satin and brilliants held her shoulder-length veil of illusion net and she carried red roses and white stephanotis. She was given in marriage by her father.

Rev. B. Brown officiated at the ceremony. Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Norman Henry Hogan of Victoria and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas William Holland of Elliot Lake, Ont.

Two attendants, Mrs. Walter Butler and Miss Marlene Ashworth, wore gowns of pink nylon over pink and mauve taffeta with pink flower head-dresses and pink veils. They carried pink carnations, white daisy chrysanthemums and ivy.

John M. Godfrey was best man and the ushers were Roy Hogan and Walter Butler.

Reception was held at 802 Esquimalt Road where a three-tier cake was cut and the bride's toast proposed by her godfather, Charles McGaw.

Honeymoon was spent up-Island, the bride travelling in a three-piece, charcoal grey knit ensemble with white and black accessories. Her corsage was yellow rosebuds.

The newlyweds are now living in the Rosalma Apartments, 841 Esquimalt Road.

Marriage Vows Exchanged In Garden City Church

White and yellow gladioli decorated Garden City United Church when Karen Thales Durand, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. N. A. Durand, 325 Kamloops Avenue, exchanged vows with James L. Grieve, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. F. Grieve, 1084 Marigold Road. Rev. L. G. Sieber officiated at the double-ring ceremony.

Organist was Mrs. P. Crossland and A. Kynas sang "Because" during signing of the register. Mr. Durand gave his daughter in marriage.

Lace appliques enhanced the bride's floor-length gown that had a lace bodice, hooped net skirt and sleeves ending in lilly points. A seed pearl headpiece held the chapel veil. Yellow rosebuds were in her bouquet.

Salad-In-the-Bag

The salad-in-a-bag trick is a favorite of many picnic hostesses. Prepare and wash all the greens and place them in a large polythene bag; then pop the bag into the refrigerator. Leave it there until the last minute so that the contents will be well chilled. In a separate bottle bring along a supply of your favorite dressing. When you're ready for the salad, simply add the dressing, hold the top of the bag firmly and toss well.

IT HAPPENED LAST NIGHT

By EARL WILSON

MEMPHIS — Lying about how smart your dog is has become one of the sports of the Jet Set—which gives you an idea of how busy the Jet Set is.

"Dog lary" do not mean to lie—but they just can't let somebody else's mutt sound smarter than their mutt.

Please understand that the beautiful singer, Marguerite Piazza, is not a dog lary.

She has a miniature pocket-sized French poodle named "Dewey, Dewey," or it could be "Dooey, Dooey," whose activities she reports in a factual manner, that's all.

"There's a night watchman who comes around," said Marguerite—who lives here with her husband, Bill Condon, the snuff king, and her brood of six—"and one night he found the door open and came in."

"Little 'Dewey, Dewey' followed him around growling and making a racket and refusing to let the watchman out. The watchman was embarrassed."

UNDERSTOOD
"We finally had to tell 'Dewey, Dewey' that it was all right now—the watchman was only doing his duty and had a wife and children to support. 'Dewey, Dewey' understood it perfectly when we explained it in those terms, and allowed him to go."

A "dog lary" such as my B.W., upon hearing such a story, would be reminded of our fat little Schnauzer, Sam Spade, who (according to her) is a Great Brain. She would assert that when Sammy senses we are going on a trip, he drags our suitcases into a backroom and hides them from us, notwithstanding the fact that they are 20 times his weight, so heavy we can hardly carry them.

THE MIDNIGHT EARL... Frank Sinatra and Sammy Davis Jr. were at the Copa to hear singer Buddy Greco. Sinatra got onstage, said merely: "I can't work—I haven't got a cabaret card." (Meanwhile, daughter Nancy was giving a 25th birthday party at the Harwyn for husband Tommy Sands) ... Drummer Buddy Rich is hospitalized again, for dental surgery ... Producer Joe Levine sold his "Sodom and Gomorrah" epic to 20th Century-Fox.

Africa-bound Peace Corps members had a night out on B'way—at the African Room ... Gay Lombardi's asking 150G for his L.I. home—and that includes his boat, Tempo.

Sonya Combs, picked as the girl with the most beautiful legs at the Folies Berger, keeps 'em covered through "Phantom of the Opera" film ... Red Skelton bought six trick umbrellas, for his TV show, at a B'way umbrella shop ... Liberace, opening at Hazrah's in Lake Tahoe, brought along 27 dinner jackets and two piano tuners ... Shirley MacLaine's husband, Steve Parker, is in Korea; he'll produce a film there and in Cambodia.

EARLY FRILLS: One way to aishish war would be for nations to agree not to start a new one till the last one was paid for.

TODAY'S BEST LAUGH: Comic Jackie Kannon says he has five little ones at home—three boys and two sports cars.

WISH I'D SAID THAT: "I can't understand why the Russians are so unfriendly," says Henry Youngman. "Two drinks of vodka and I like everybody!"

Tally Tuttle says she's buying her boy friend something he's wanted since he started playing golf—a hole in one. That's earl, brother.

SOUTH AFRICA SIMPLY WILD ABOUT SNOW

JOHANNESBURG (AP)—The heaviest snowfall in memory covered Johannesburg Tuesday. Frolicking citizens—many seeing snow for the first time—started snowball fights that sometimes led to swinging fists and smashed windows.

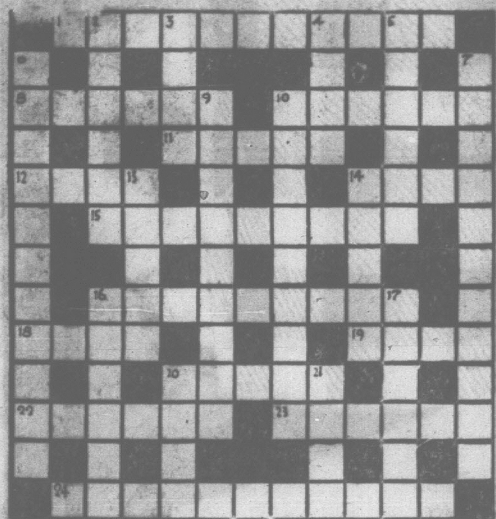

Downtown, stenographers, clerks and their bosses hurled snowballs at pedestrians and autos below their office windows. Commuters could not get out of the railroad stations without being pelted. Snow-balls swirled through the streets without regard for traffic as they sought fresh targets.

There was a heavy toll of broken windows in autos, buses and buildings. The snow was 12 inches deep in places in this city of 1,000,000 persons.

HE GIVES AWAY GRAND PRIZES

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy.

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes.

The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 50-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a Hammond Atlas or Globe.

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Mark Jarvis, age 10, Dallas, Texas, for his question:

How Does Sound and Picture Reach the TV at the Same Time?
Nowadays, a half-awake ten-year-old knows that light and sound travel at different speeds. Light is a speedy traveler and sound is a slowpoke. We know that the sound and the TV picture start out from the broadcasting station together and it is natural, very natural, to wonder how come the race is always a tie. For after many miles of travel, the sound and picture arrive on your TV screen together—or they should. Light travels at about 186,300 miles a second and sound ambles along through ordinary air at about one mile in five seconds. This can be baffling, especially when we see a live telecast. We knew that light brings us the picture and sound brings the words or music to our ears. We see our favorite

Waves Differ, Speed Same

Both the picture and the sound are sent out from the broadcasting station on powerful electromagnetic waves. This is the same kind of speedy, invisible energy as sunlight, radar and radio.

Though on different wavelengths, it pulses forth from the studio antenna at about 186,300 miles a second—fast enough to whip around the equator seven and a half times in a second. This, however, it could not do because these electromagnetic waves fan out from their source in straight lines.

Cameras, microphones and all kinds of complicated instruments inside the studio modify the electromagnetic waves, much as you knit a design into a sweater. The designs made by sounds and picture travel with the TV waves and are translated into the program on your TV screen.

Sounds and pictures arrive together because they travel at small changes in the TV waves that rush from the studio to your living-room. Along the way, they too are invisible travellers, whipping along at the speed of light. Your TV set turns the designs made by sounds back into sounds and the designs made by studio cameras back into pictures.

Andy sends a Hammond's Nature Atlas of America to Cindy Peterson, age 11, of Sarasota, Fla., for her question:

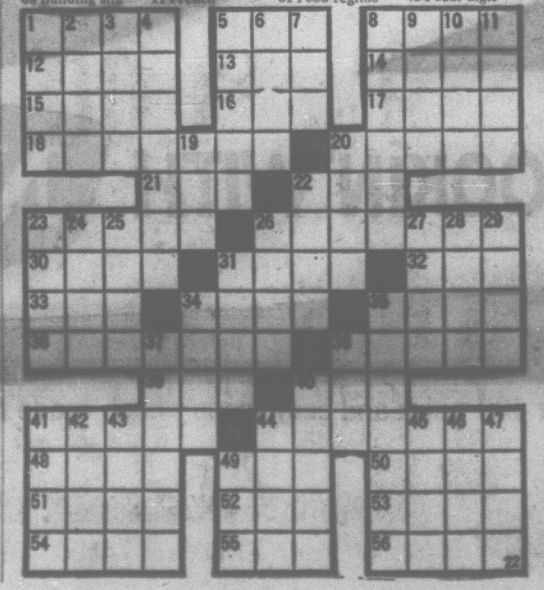

Who discovered maple syrup?
A maple farmer must wait 40 years for his trees to yield their honey-sweet syrup, but 40 years later, those same trees are just reaching their richest yields.

The sugar maple is a long-lived tree and New Englanders claim that trees planted by the Pilgrims still yield their sugary harvests. Some of these old trees show the scars where the Pilgrims used axes to drill for their maple syrup. Some trees also bear even older tomahawk scars.

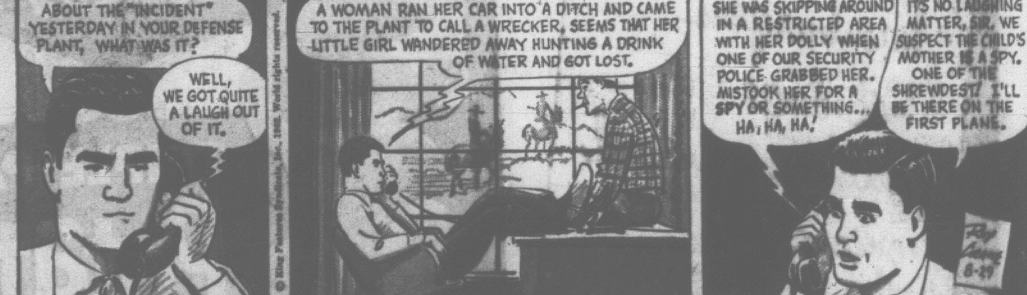

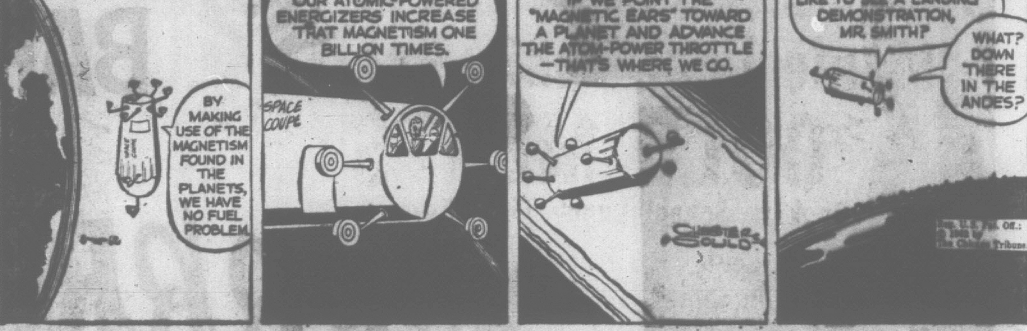

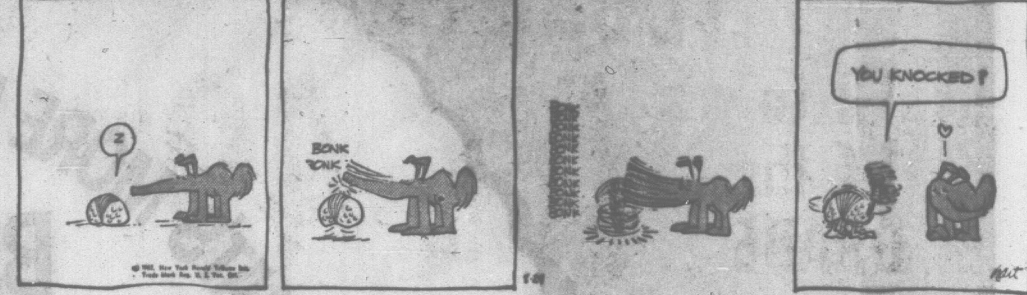

The New England settlers learned about the sweet sap of the sugar maple from the Indians who were there before them. So the delectable discovery of maple syrup was made by the Indians, perhaps hundreds of years before Columbus discovered the Americas.

200 Enter Big Horse Show

A record number of entries held Saturday, starting at 1 p.m., while the English events will take place Monday afternoon.

Children's events will be held Sunday.

Judge for the three shows is J. W. G. MacEwan of Calgary.

The show—an annual attraction which draws large crowds—is sponsored by the Garden City Horsemen's Club.

G. F. Aitken, chairman, said today more than 200 entries will compete in western, English and children's events during the three days.

"This is an increase over last year's entries which numbered about 160," he said. "The show is getting bigger every year."

LOCAL BRIEFS

Penny Butt, 16, of 493 Lampson, won first prize in art work competition for 18 and under at the province-wide hobby and craft show of the PNE.

Miss Butt's entries in the contest were watercolors and a pen sketch of ranch life.

Another local winner was J. H. McEvoy, 4141 Gillie, who earned a third in the children's toys and rugs and sewing and handwork division.

City police department is investigating terms of a proposed international traffic training school to alternate between Alberta and California starting in 1963.

Police commission Tuesday asked for more details of the proposal, which would allow wider participation of Western Canadian traffic police in courses offered by Northwestern University Traffic Institute.

If sufficient police enroll—a minimum of 30 is required—courses would be held at University of Alberta's extension at Banff next year.

Production of hand-crafted articles in B.C. is increasing steadily, having a substantial effect on provincial economy, Trade Minister Robert Bonner said Monday.

He released the 1962 directory of handicraft products and producers for B.C., which is intended to help retailers and producers in buying and selling items.

It ranges from carved wooden animals, leathercraft and ceramics to lacework, painting, toymaking and rock polishing.

Six letters of commendation

Traffic accidents in the city were fewer last month than in June.

Statistics released Tuesday show there were 91 crashes, 74 of them involving two or more cars, compared with 103 in June, of which 87 were auto-auto.

In neither month was there a traffic fatality, but 30 people were hurt in July, 39 in June.

A marker will be installed on an unnamed rock projecting at low water 50 yards off Cattle Point boat launching ramp, where two outboard operators have damaged their engines.

Dist. marine agent Keith Dixon told Oak Bay works committee Monday night the department of transport would place a day marker "when time permits."

Normally, he said, such a marker would be put up as part of the launching facilities by the owner, but since the DOT has the experience and facilities for such installations, the department will do the job.

Charles Stoddard, HMCS Margaree, pleaded guilty to a charge of being a minor in possession of liquor and was fined $20 in Esquimalt police court Monday.

He was fined an additional $10 for driving without a subsisting driver's licence.

BOND ISSUE FOR PGE 'OVERSOLD BY MILLIONS'

Big Alaska Power Plan Gets Boost

WASHINGTON (CP)—A study prepared for a U.S. Senate committee has heightened speculation that a vast hydro-electric distribution system may eventually stretch from the Yukon River in Alaska down through British Columbia and into the rich power-consuming areas of California.

The study, prepared by Development and Resources Corporation of New York, says building the proposed $1,300,000,000 rampart dam in Alaska—which would create a lake larger than Erie—is economically feasible and that its potential 3,730,000 kilowatts of generating capacity could be sold as it becomes available.

The report is based on a 27-year forecast for power and its use of the Rampart project by 1990, producing enough low-priced electricity to serve an average-sized city. The proposed Rampart site is about 100 miles northwest of Fairbanks, on the Yukon River which rises out of the Canadian Yukon, crosses Alaska and empties into the Bering Sea. Cost of Rampart power is estimated at between two and four mills a kilowatt hour.

Research on Rampart—a project which required U.S. negotiations with Canada since the river originates in Canada—is being continued through congressional grants. The Senate public-works committee is studying the proposal but is still a long way from considering whether construction should be authorized.

SUGGESTS USES
Ordered by the committee, the study suggests one possible use for Rampart power would be to feed it into vast networks serving Canada "which in turn may be interconnected with areas in the states to the south."

It adds that "whether such interconnections will prove feasible in the next 30 years will depend not only upon what happens with respect to the authorization and construction of Rampart but also upon the related development in Canada."

This appears to be a reference to the future of the Columbia River project and development of BC's Peace River project.

Interior Secretary Stewart Udall believes it entirely possible to move huge blocks of power long distances.

OUTLINES NEED
The Rampart study says the U.S. probably will need about 1,000,000 kilowatts of new generating capacity by 1990.

Giant Brush Fires Raging In California; Damage High

1,300 Men Fight Canyon Blazes

LOS ANGELES — Some 1,300 fire fighters, assisted by bulldozers and borate bombers, fought a massive holding action today against two giant brush blazes and prevented them from joining and spreading to more inhabited areas.

The two blazes which started Tuesday afternoon almost simultaneously had charred more than 16,500 acres by noon, destroying a $100,000 clinical building at Olive View Sanatorium, and some 30 ranch buildings including most of cowboy singer Gene Autry's famed Melody Ranch, scene of many movie and television films.

The fires were some 30 miles north of downtown Los Angeles.

A half dozen fire fighters suffered minor injuries such as sprained ankles and slight burns but no serious cases were reported.

FOUR MILES APART

Perimeters of the two fires—one in Newhall-Placerita canyon area and the other in the Castale-Hasley canyon area—were only four miles apart but there seemed no immediate danger of a junction.

Bulldozers and men using shovels and sacks were concentrated on the southern edge of the Castale blaze and set up fire breaks which averted a threat to suburban Chatsworth.

Gusty winds, low humidity and temperatures rising above 90 degrees caused fire officials great concern and no one would predict when the blazes would be contained.

PLANES JOIN FIGHT

Six borate bombers joined the battle at dawn and five others were standing by. Fifteen bulldozers and 111 fire trucks were thrown into the battle.

When the Newhall blaze reached the vicinity of Olive View Sanatorium Tuesday night, some 800 patients were safely evacuated. All the patients, including 60 children, were transferred to emergency shelters with the more serious cases going to three hospitals. Several oil storage tanks at the El Patrero facility went up in flames as the Newhall blaze spread.

Flames advanced on two vital Nike missile sites. A powder works containing an estimated 100 tons of explosives was saved after flames licked to within 10 feet of the plant.

Lumber Talks Resume

OTTAWA (CP)—Fourteen men were back to the conference table today for their second round of talks on the ticklish problem of Canada's mounting lumber exports to the United States.

Diefenbaker Primed For London Session

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker presided at a cabinet meeting today in preparation for his departure next week to attend the Commonwealth prime ministers' conference in London.

1. Justice Minister Fleming will be acting prime minister while he and External Affairs Minister Green are in London. He told reporters:

2. He will arrive in London Friday, Sept. 7, and have private talks with Prime Ministers Menzies and Holyoake of Australia and New Zealand, and with other Commonwealth leaders, before the conference opens Sept. 10.

3. Preparations of the legislative program for the Parliamentary session opening Sept. 27 are well advanced, and ministers will work on the details while he is away.

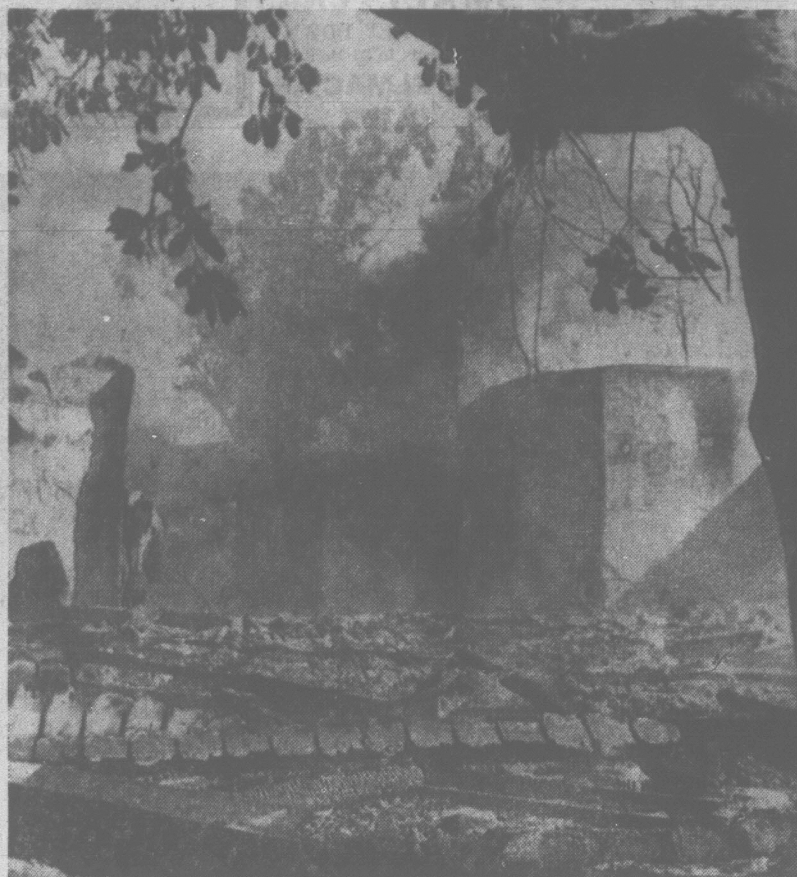

4. Canada will press forcibly to condemn Russia in the United Nations next month for Soviet imperialism.

Canadian representatives abroad have been canvassing other countries for support of a resolution condemning Russia's imperialism, he said. Final decision on the tactics to be employed in the UN has not been made.

Bernard Gilpin Lacy, surgeon and accoucheur, arrived from England and established chambers in the Star and Garter Hotel.

The former residence of Mayor Thomas Harris is being converted into a bank building for the Chartered Bank of British Columbia.

A bull broke loose from a herd of cattle as they were being driven up Yates Street, and walked through Keyser's mattress store, fortunately without causing damage, although two ladies on the premises were badly frightened.

Red China Border Shut After Blast

HONG KONG (AP)—Communist China closed its border with Hong Kong today minutes after a bomb exploded on the Chinese side of the border station at Shumehun.

The British closed off their side of the border immediately after. A British spokesman said it would remain closed as long as the Communist barricades remained up.

The explosion was the seventh in a series that have rocked border stations facing Hong Kong and the nearby Portuguese colony of Macao in recent weeks.

Observers believe the explosions are the work of an organized anti-Communist terrorist movement taking shape in Red China's coastal province of Kwangtung.

This is the first evidence of such an organized resistance movement since the Communists conquered the China mainland 13 years ago.

Several persons were believed injured in the explosion today. The previous bombings along the Hong Kong and Macao borders killed two persons and destroyed a Communist pillbox, a

BOY REFUSED TO BUDGE, TRAIN CRASH AVERTED

LONDON (Reuters)—Moscow radio told Tuesday night of a seven-year-old boy who prevented a train derailment by sitting on the tracks in the face of an oncoming train.

It said the incident happened between two towns in the Uzbek Republic in Soviet central Asia.

The train engineer sounded the whistle—but the boy stayed put, stopping the train. The engine's crew and passengers left the train and rushed up to the boy.

He got up without saying a word, Moscow radio said, and pointed to the place where he had been sitting—to reveal a gap in the track.

Lumbermen Will Report To Capitals

OTTAWA (UPI)—United States and Canadian negotiators today ended two days of talks on the U.S. softwood lumber problem and agreed to meet again soon.

A brief, general statement said both sides had discussed the impact of Canadian lumber exports on the U.S. west coast industry and the long-term lumber situation for both countries.

"The delegations will report back to their respective governments and consult with their industries," the statement said.

ASKED BY JFK

The talks, initiated at the suggestion of President Kennedy following pressure by Congressmen from lumber states in the U.S. northwest, were held at the official rather than the political level. Kennedy made the request a month ago, asking for negotiations on possible voluntary quotas by Canada on its lumber exports.

The Canadian group was headed by Norman A. Robertson, Canada's under-secretary of state, and the U.S. group by G. Griffith Johnson, assistant secretary of state for economic affairs.

Canada's share in the U.S. softwood market has risen from 7.4 per cent to 13.1 per cent during the last 10 years and has been damaging for the industry on the U.S. West Coast.

Canada was expected to take a tough line during the talks in which the U.S. was asking for the voluntary quotas.

MOTHER SUPERIOR HAS NOTHING TO SAY Former Nun to Train Lions

Shirley and friends

By EDDY GILMORE

LONDON (AP)—A 22-year-old nun said today she has left her convent in hopes of becoming a lion tamer.

"Mother Superior was very understanding about my wanting to leave," said Shirley Farmer, "but, of course, I didn't tell her what I wanted to do."

Shirley entered the Roman Catholic Convent of the Good Shepherd here five years ago. She said she had completed her novitiate, but had to wait four years to take her final vows.

As Sister Mary Immaculata she was a house mother, looking after and teaching young girls.

LIKES CONVENT LIFE

"I like life in the convent," she told reporters, "it's wonderful if you have the vocation."

"But I wanted to be out and free. The feeling came over me slowly."

"I've always enjoyed working with animals, and I particularly want to learn how to handle lions."

Before she entered the convent she had been a bikini girl in a sideshow, and she handled snakes and monkeys. Theatrical agent Bernard Woolley said he hopes to have a circus job for her soon.

The Mother Superior of the convent refused to discuss

Bernard Gilpin Lacy, surgeon and accoucheur, arrived from England and established chambers in the Star and Garter Hotel.

The former residence of Mayor Thomas Harris is being converted into a bank building for the Chartered Bank of British Columbia.

24,300 Going Back To Studies Tuesday

Report Times Set For Record Lists

A record 24,300 pupils will go tripping back to school on Tuesday in Greater Victoria.

Registration has been going on all week at schools throughout District No. 51, and teachers have been building up their strength all summer.

The Greater Victoria School Board has hired 23 more teachers than last year to cope with the estimated increase of 900 students over the 1961-62 school year.

Facilities of all schools will be stretched to the limit, the school board reported.

No pupils have been permitted to register in schools other than those serving the area in which they live.

SHORT-TERM SHIFTS

While shift systems will be in operation at Glanford, Shelbourne, Tillicum, Macaulay and Mackenzie Avenue elementary schools, progress of the current school building program approved by ratepayers last October is expected to end shifts at the majority of these in the first two months.

Secondary schools will not have to use the shift system.

Pupils enrolled in elementary schools are instructed to report at 9 a.m. Tuesday.

Pupils of junior and senior high schools will report during the morning as follows: grade 7, 9 a.m.; grade 8, 10 a.m.; grade 9, 11 a.m.; grade 10, 9 a.m.; grade 11, 10 a.m. and grade 12, 11 a.m.

Classes will be held in the morning only at all schools. Real work begins Wednesday.

BY MAIL

Kindergarten pupils will be notified when to report through the mail.

The only exception to the reporting program is Macaulay Elementary. Pupils of this school should contact either the school board office or the school itself for instructions.

In Saanich School District 63 it is expected around 3,000 pupils will report Tuesday morning.

Pupils of all but two schools will start their school year at 9 a.m. Royal Oak Junior Secondary School will report at 8:30, and Claremont Senior Secondary pupils at 9:30 a.m. In Sooke School District No. 62 an estimated 2,800 pupils will converge on their respective schools at 9 a.m. Tuesday.

ASK The TIMES

Q. Will you please tell me if there is a listing of a passenger ship arriving from San Francisco over Easter Sunday weekend of 1923 in your paper's files?—R.N.

A. No ship from San Francisco carrying passengers for Victoria arrived in this city at that time.

Q.—How many women are there as representatives of their country at the United Nations?—S.P.

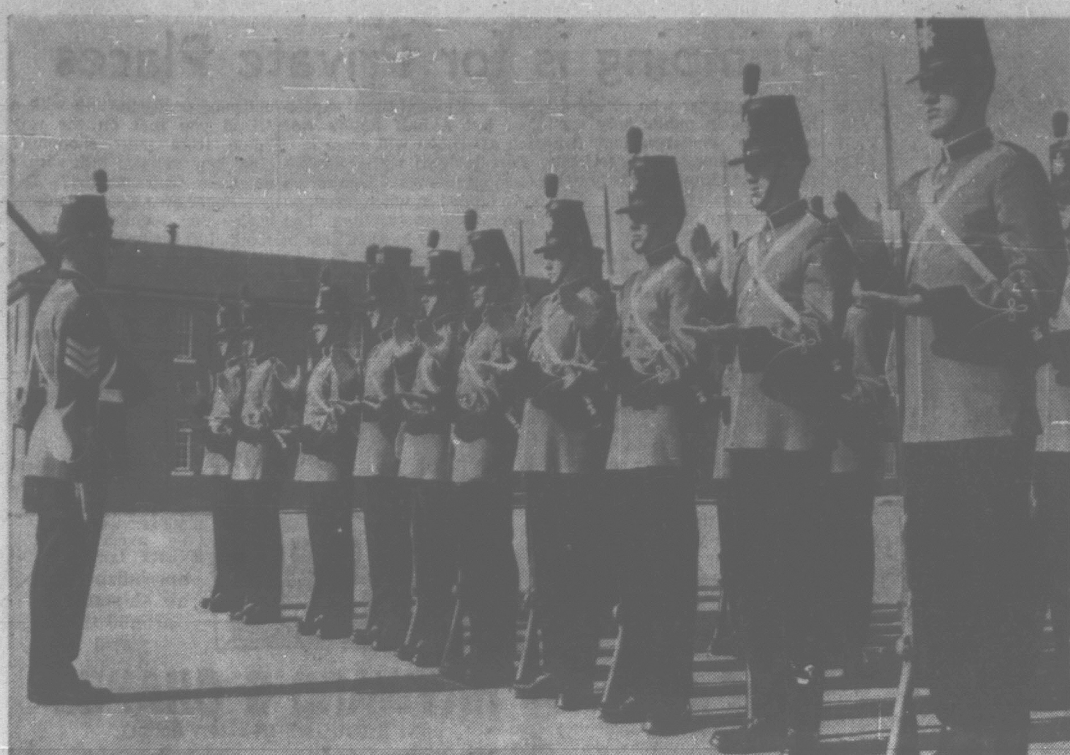

A. — Only one country, Sweden, has a woman as permanent representative at UN headquarters in New York. She is Mrs. Agda Rosell.

Q.—What is the Rowan Tree? Does it grow here? We have a friend in Scotland who says it makes excellent jelly.—Mrs. D. D.

A. — The Rowan Tree is the European species of the Mountain Ash. The Sitka Mountain Ash is fairly common on the Island, and its berries are suitable for jelly.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the problem along to The Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums or legal problems. We will attempt to put a value on old coins, stamps or antiques. These should be submitted to a dealer.

TURNING BACK THE PAGES of the drill manual to 1856, 29-man detachment of PPCLI 1st Battalion rehearsed at Work Point today for six-minute segment of military tattoo to be presented by Canadian army at Century 21, Seattle, Sept. 10 to 15. Wearing authentic uniforms and carrying actual British muskets of era, drill team re-enacts sentry-posting including antiquated "parade rest" involving a motion similar to handclapping, as shown here. Muskets arrived today from museum at Fort Ticonderoga, N.Y. Troops from across Canada will take part in full two-hour tattoo.

MONTE ROBERTS

It is hard for an old-timer to believe, but this winter only one "Princess" steamer will be operating on the whole vast British Columbia coast.

Never mind giving me all the reasons why the CPR Princesses are following the dinosaur and the great auk into the dim recesses of memory.

Don't bother explaining that people want to travel in their cars; that they prefer the shortest possible water trips between highway terminals; that the CPR pulled a boner when it continued to order pocket liners for the coastal trade; that this type of vessel was doomed even before the government started in the tin can ferry business; that economy and progress have outdated the luxurious Princess steamers.

Just leave me alone and let me weep at the prospect of only one Princess steamer on the whole, evergreen coast of this province.

And this one not even a Princess in the purest sense; more a Princess up top and a ferryboat down inside.

It is, indeed, hard to believe all the old, glorious services extended by the Princess steamers are no more. It seems only yesterday when the B.C. Coast Service was just that—a service to the B.C. coast, unexcelled for courtesy, comfort and convenience.

The Princess steamers ran between Victoria and Vancouver and Seattle, with both day and night services. They connected the Gulf Islands to the mainland, they ran up the picturesque west coast of Vancouver Island, to Prince Rupert and Alaska, between Vancouver and Nanaimo. There were even services to Powell River and Comox.

And the steamers!—powerful, fast and pretty, they made even a prosaic run across the gulf from the mainland to Nanaimo a deepsea adventure.

Next winter—just one Princess service left.

The only consolation is we can still slip down to the Inner Harbor at noontime, watch Marguerite and Patricia side by side, and dream of the dear dead days beyond recall.

JIMMY MURRAY ... seen him?

PLAQUE HONORS MARINES

A detachment of University Naval Training Division cadets who have been taking summer training at Royal Roads will visit San Juan Island Sept. 6 to install a plaque honoring Royal Marines buried there.

The marines died during the British-American joint occupation of the Island following the "pig war."

Last year UNTD cadets made a weekend expedition to the island, cleaning up the historic cemetery.

Boy Missing After Squabble at Arena

A 13-year-old Esquimalt boy who stamped out of Esquimalt Arena in a huff Monday noon is still missing.

Jimmy Murray, 1137 Bewdley, has become the object of a police hunt over lower Vancouver Island.

Foul play is not suspected as yet, but fear for his safety—were neither jacket nor shoes—is mounting.

Jimmy is slight, four feet eight inches tall, and has light brown hair cut in a crewcut.

He was last seen wearing ice skates, blue jeans and a blue tartan shirt, riding a maroon bicycle with a carrier on front and racing-style handlebars bent forward.

SQUABBLE

Esquimalt police say Jimmy is believed to have left the Esquimalt arena after a squabble with some friends there.

He rode away on his bicycle and vanished.

His mother, Mrs. J. A. Murray, believes he may have headed for Shawnigan Lake where some friends have a summer cabin.

"He hitch-hikes on the Malahat all the time," she said.

"He may have ditched his bike in the woods and caught a ride."

Beard Judging Set As Opener Of Logging Games

Wives and girl friends of hairy-jowelled Victorians who have used their city's centenary as an excuse not to shave, will be glad to hear that beard-judging will open the Pacific Northwest Logging Games Sept. 14.

This means that many will be removing their beards the day after.

Centennial Society officials said today that the judging of beards, many of which have been cultivated since January, will open the two-day logging championships.

Prizes will be awarded for the best all-round and the most unusual beard, among other categories.

$2,500 Bail Set In Forgery Case

Bail of $2,500 was granted in Victoria County Court today to Stanley John Bullivant, charged with uttering five forged cheques to a total value of $478.

Bullivant is committed to stand trial at the Fall Assizes in B.C. Supreme Court, which open on Monday, Oct. 1.

He was committed in RCMP court by Magistrate A. I. Thomas on Aug. 23.

The cheques he is alleged to have forged were cashed at the Colwood branch of the Canadian Bank of Commerce last May.

Smoke Charges Withdrawn Against Seven City Firms

Eleven charges laid under Victoria's now-defunct anti-smoke by-law against seven business firms were withdrawn in city police court today.

Charged were McCarter Shingle Co. (two counts), Standard Steam Laundry (two counts), Economy Steam

PAUL SMITH ... at the ready

NORTH POLE CALL

Maybe It Was Jolly Old Santa!

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Smith, 2009 Cook Street, were out when their phone rang Sunday.

Lots of people are out when their phone rings, but what depressed Mr. and Mrs. Smith was that their call was from the North Pole, Isachsen to be exact.

Malcome Pope used to live with the Smiths. Now he is stationed in the frozen wastes well inside the Arctic Circle at a department of transport weather station.

LOCATION

Isachsen, named after a Dutch brewer who financed the trip which explored the area, is situated in an inlet on the west coast of Ellef Ringnes Island.

It faces on to the Prince Gustav Adolf Sea in the Arctic Ocean.

The Smiths think Malcome, whose address is grid reference 78 degrees 47 minutes north by 103 degrees 30 minutes west, was their caller from the North Pole.

Now they are wondering why he called.

THANK YOU

The call was relayed to Victoria by "ham" radio operators—how many they don't know. But they are anxious to thank them for trying to contact them.

The Smiths said they're not leaving their phone EV 3-9588 just in case one of the "hams" phones again.

They also wonder if it is possible to phone the North Pole from Victoria.

TOPICS OF THE DAY

Jaycees have $90 in 50-cent pieces they don't know what to do with.

The money is in the Junior Chamber of Commerce office, 1217 Douglas Street, and belongs to those who bought guesses in a contest at the Jaycee fair in May. The contest was closed because its legality was questioned.

Owners either can call at the office to retrieve their half-dollars, or donate the money to Victoria College's development fund.

A gift of undisclosed amount has been recommended by Capital Improvement District Commission to the B.C. cabinet to help Victoria build its centennial square.

But it will be a month or more before the cabinet deals with the suggestion, a government official said.

The square is planned as a civic precinct that will renew a two-block downtown area including city hall.

Performers in the 1,000-member cast of Victoria's centennial pageant will be given a certificate of appreciation signed by the mayor.

The certificates may be picked up by the individual centennial office, Douglas Street.

Neil Gordon Dalgety pleaded not guilty in city police court today on the first of five counts of uttering a forged document. Trial is set for Sept. 13.

Victoria Aged Pensioners Association No. 3 will hold its monthly general meeting in the Legion Hall, 1616 Blanshard, next Tuesday at 1:30 p.m.

Members will be guests of Cedar Hill Golf Club each Friday next month.

Among Victorians named recently as scholarship winners from the University of British Columbia was Charles Brown, 1651 Fairfield.

He received over 80 per cent average marks to win the scholarship, to pay for next year's tuition.

William John McClinchey, 823 Darwin, pleaded not guilty in city police court today to a charge of impaired driving and was remanded to Sept. 4 for trial.

A modest increase in the number of Adams River sockeye salmon through the Strait of Juan de Fuca has resulted in a two-day extension to seine and gillnet operations in the waters west of the William Head-Port Angeles line, the federal fisheries department office said today.

Seining in the western end of Juan de Fuca will be permitted until 6 p.m. Friday and gillnetting until 6 a.m. Saturday.

VICTORIAN 'LITTLE UNFORTUNATE' IN NOT FINDING MACKENZIE'S GRAVE

Och! Awa' Wi' Ye ... Of Course the Scots Honor Their Famous Sons

By IAIN HUNTER

For a while it appeared as if Scotland had forgotten one of her famous sons.

The suggestion came from several distraught Victorians who were convinced the grave of Sir Alexander Mackenzie was lost. They thought Scotsmen had forgotten the famous explorer.

They should have known better.

Following a report in the Times that Fred Maurice, 3921 Braefoot Place, had been unable to locate Sir Alexander's grave while in Scotland, Dr. David Turner, deputy minister of recreation and conservation, wrote to the Scottish Tourist Board.

"Perhaps our fellow Scots don't realize that Sir Alexander Mackenzie was the first white man to cross the North American Continent from east to west," he wrote. He charged the tourist board with the task of unearthing the grave of the man who explored the Mackenzie River to the Arctic Ocean and who reached the Pacific Ocean by land.

The noble lords on the board, including the Duke of Atholl and the Earl of Rosebery, were horrified.

A document, covered with Scottish thistles, was dispatched to Dr. Turner. It bore a message as sharp as the flower with which it was decorated.

"I was a little surprised to find the article stating that Sir Alexander Mackenzie was not known to the Scots, as I would say most Scots know of Sir Alexander Mackenzie, the river being named in his honor, and his further journeys to the Pacific," public relations officer Iain Anderson wrote.

The letter went on:

"Sir Alexander Mackenzie married in 1812 Geddes Mackenzie, who, in the Scottish phrase, brought to her husband the property of Avoch (pronounced Auch) in Inverness-shire. In the course of a journey from London by coach with Lady Mackenzie and his family, Sir Alexander became seriously ill near Pitlochry. The coach was stopped at a then coaching inn at Moulin Earn, south of Pitlochry, and Sir Alexander was taken into the inn, where he died the following morning, the 12th of March, 1820.

"His body was taken to Avoch, and he lies buried in the Mackenzie plot in the churchyard there, where his wife, who died some 40 years later, is also buried."

Photographs showing the grave, with the headstone set in the churchyard wall, accompanied the letter.

"The keeper of the graveyard," Mr. Anderson continued, "who maintains the Mackenzie enclosure in trim condition because of the fame of Sir Alexander, (said) that he has many Canadians visiting the grave of this famous man."

He concluded that Mr. Maurice "was probably a little unfortunate when he sought this information in not succeeding in finding the grave."

A note furiously scribbled at the bottom of the last page by a board member read:

"Pass this information to your local newspaper who suggested to its readers that we in Scotland do not honor our famous sons!"

Never again, m'lord, never again.

$50.9 Million Of Issue Subscribed

The B.C. government's new parity bond issue has sold a total of $50,976,300, well over the amount needed to refund $35,600,000 of original PGE parity issue which comes due on Sept. 15, Premier Bennett announced today.

MAINTAIN TOTAL

He also said he intends to carry out his announced policy of keeping the total of parity bonds at $212,000,000.

To do this some of the excess funds will be used to retire $15,300,000 of B.C. Hydro parity bonds which are already in the government's hands.

This will keep the total of parity bonds issued for the three government agencies at the limit figure.

The new parity issue had created wide interest in financial circles.

The maturity of the $35,600,000 PGE parities on Sept. 15 is the first since the government adopted this financing policy three years ago.

Because of present high interest rates the premier decided on a refunding by parities rather than funding on a long-term basis.

Some financial circles had been predicting a run on the parity bonds—which amount to demand money—but the increase in interest rates apparently made them attractive to investors.

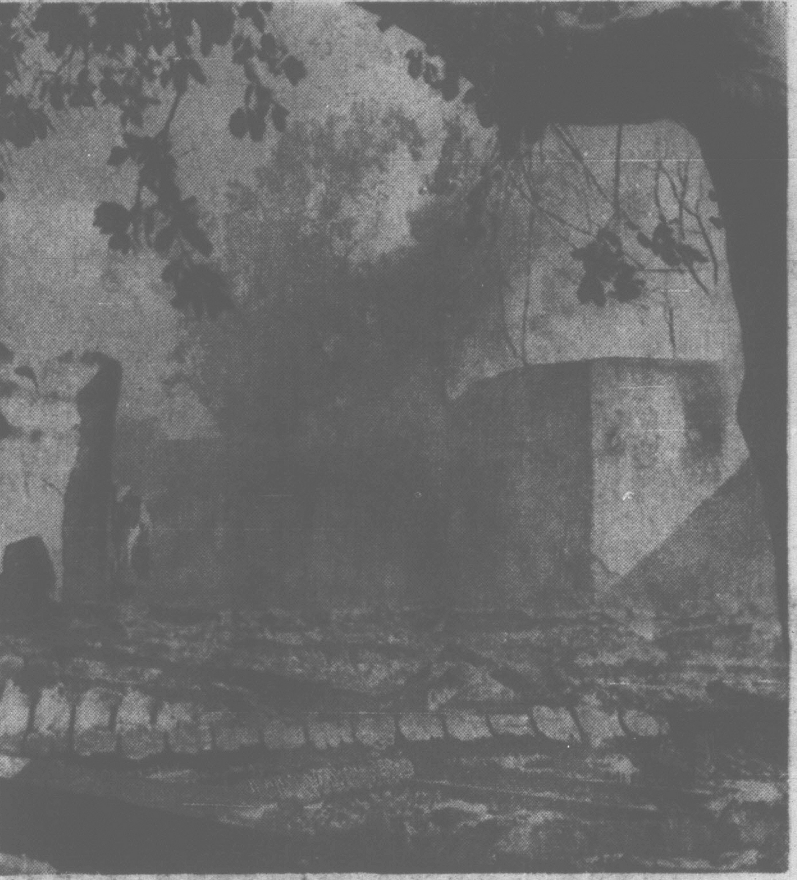

When he announced the new issue, the premier put no limit on the amount to be sold, although the main purpose was to refund the $35.6 million issue.

Many of the sales, it is understood, were to people who exchanged the 5 per cent original issue for the new 5 1/2 per cent issue.

Red China Border New Red Shut After Blast Test Ban Rejected

HONG KONG (AP)—Communist China closed its border with Hong Kong today minutes after a bomb exploded on the Chinese side of the border station at Shumchun.

The British closed off their side of the border immediately after a British spokesman said it would remain closed as long as the Communist barricades remained up.

The explosion was the seventh in a series that have rocked border stations facing Hong Kong and the nearby Portuguese colony of Macao in recent weeks.

Observers believe the explosions are the work of an organized anti-Communist terrorist movement taking shape in Red China's coastal province of Kwangtung.

This is the first evidence of such an organized resistance movement since the Communists conquered the China mainland 12 years ago.

Several persons were believed injured in the explosion today.

The previous bombings along the Hong Kong and Macao borders killed two persons and destroyed a Communist pillbox, a blockhouse, a dynamite magazine, a bank and a section of the Shumchun-Canton railway.

Unexploded time bombs also have been found on a Canton-Macao ferry and in the luggage of a Hong Kong resident.

Only one person, identified by the Communist authorities as a Chinese Nationalist agent, has been reported caught and executed.

The Chinese Communists blamed the bombings on special agents of the central committee of Nationalist Chinese President Chiang Kai-shek's Kuomintang party.

Major Blazes Four Miles Apart

LOS ANGELES — Some 1,300 fire fighters, assisted by bulldozers and borate bombers, fought a massive holding action today against two giant brush blazes and prevented them from joining and spreading to more inhabited areas.

The two blazes which started Tuesday afternoon almost simultaneously had charred more than 16,500 acres by noon, destroying a $100,000 clinical building at Olive View Sanatorium, and some 30 ranch buildings including most of cowboy singer Gene Autry's famed Melody Ranch, scene of many movie and television films.

The fires were some 30 miles north of downtown Los Angeles.

A half dozen fire fighters suffered minor injuries such as sprained ankles and slight burns but no serious cases were reported.

FOUR MILES APART

Perimeters of the two fires—one in Newhall-Placerita canyon area and the other in the Castaic-Hasley canyon area—were only four miles apart but there seemed no immediate danger of a junction.

Bulldozers and men using shovels and sacks were concentrated on the southern edge of the Castaic blaze and set up fire breaks which averted a threat to suburban Chatsworth.

Gusty winds, low humidity and temperatures rising above 90 degrees caused fire officials great concern and no one would predict when the blazes would be contained.

PLANES JOIN FIGHT

Six borate bombers joined the battle at dawn and five others were standing by. Fifteen bulldozers and 111 fire trucks were thrown into the battle.

When the Newhall blaze reached the vicinity of Olive View Sanatorium Tuesday night, some 800 patients were safely evacuated. All the patients, including 60 children, were transferred to emergency shelters with the more serious cases going to three hospitals.

Several oil storage tanks at the El Patroero facility went up in flames as the Newhall blaze spread.

Flames advanced on two vital Nike missile sites. A powder works containing an estimated 100 tons of explosives was saved after flames licked to within 10 feet of the plant.

Research on Rampart—a project which required U.S. negotiations with Canada since the river originates in Canada—is being continued through congressional grants. The Senate public works committee is studying the proposal but is still a long way from considering whether construction should be authorized.

SUGGESTS USES

Ordered by the committee, the study suggests one possible use for Rampart power would be to feed it into vast networks serving Canada "which in turn may be interconnected with areas in the states to the south."

It adds that "whether such interconnections will prove feasible in the next 20 years will depend not only upon what happens with respect to the authorization and construction of Rampart but also upon the related development in Canada."

This appears to be a reference to the future of the Columbia River project and development of BC's Peace River project.

Interior Secretary Stewart Udall believes it entirely possible to move huge blocks of power long distances.

OUTLINES NEED

The Rampart study says the U.S. probably will need about 1,000,000,000 kilowatts of new generating capacity by 1990.

MOTHER SUPERIOR HAS NOTHING TO SAY

Former Nun to Train Lions

By EDDY GILMORE
LONDON (AP)—A 22-year-old nun said today she has left her convent in hopes of becoming a lion tamer.

"Mother Superior was very understanding about my wanting to leave," said Shirley Farmer, "but, of course, I didn't tell her what I wanted to do."

Shirley entered the Roman Catholic Convent of the Good Shepherd here five years ago. She said she had completed her novitiate, but had to wait four years to take her final vows.

As Sister Mary Immaculata she was a house mother, looking after and teaching young girls.

"I like life in the convent," she told reporters, "it's wonderful if you have the vocation."

"But I wanted to be out and free. The feeling came over me slowly.

"I've always enjoyed working with animals, and I particularly want to learn how to handle lions."

Before she entered the convent she had been a bikini girl in a sideshow. Then she handled snakes and monkeys. Theatrical agent Bernard Woolley said he hopes to have a circus job for her soon.

The Mother Superior of the convent refused to discuss the matter.
